Two-Pronged Storm Paralyzes Northeast—Death Toll Mounts

By The Associated Press

A massive snowfall buried the Northeast Saturday, immobilizing cities, blocking highways, disrupting commerce and vital services.

Deaths from the storm, a double - pronged giant that rolled in from the west and up from the south on winds hitting 75 miles an hour, climbed past 70.

Up to 30 inches of new snow fell in upstate New York, piling up atop heavy falls from earlier storms unmelted during the longest deep freeze on record.

A state of emergency was proclaimed in New York City, and for the first time private automobile traffic was barred from the streets. In an unprecedented move, Mayor Wagner ordered police to stop all but essential vehicles, such as buses, food and fuel trucks and doctors on call.

Other communities took similar action as hundreds of abandoned automobiles, some of them buried so deeply that snowplows couldn't see them, blocked streets and highways.

New York City measured 17.4 inches when the snow tapered off at nightfall. Mayor Wagner's order on private transportation was largely academic by that time. Few cars could move, anyway.

The city had 12,000 men trying to clear the streets, with 2,500 pieces of equipment. But there are 6,000 miles of streets, and the task looked overwhelming.

Nassau and Suffolk counties, on Long Island, were particularly hard hit. A stinging wind piled drifts as high as 10 feet in some places, lights were out for a time in 12,000 homes and at Montauk Point Lighthouse. The point's six Coast Guardsmen shifted to auxiliary power to warn ships passing that landmark at the eastern tip of Long Island.

Throughout much of the East, the new snow was critical because it came on the heels of a record cold spell, 16 days of unbroken below-zero temperatures in Albany, for example, the same number of days below freezing in New York City.

But late in the day, the mercury hit 33 in New York City. The old record of 15 days was established 80 years ago.

As night came, the storm still battered southern New England, but apparently had headed to sea, dealing Maine only a glancing blow.

But Rhode Island got 16 inches, parts of Massachusetts caught up to 12 inches with drafts piling several feet deep. Many Connecticut cities were practically isolated.

Continued cold and high winds were forecast for the Northeast in the storm's wake.

Tragedy struck, and so did comedy as life skidded and bogged in the swirling sea of snow. Pedestrians were blown across icy streets to sprawl grotesquely in snowdrifts. Good-natured passersby pulled them out, sometimes to slip themselves a few steps further on.

But there was growing tragedy,

Kennedy Gets Soviet Signals Indicating Honeymoon's End

One magazine on Saturday pronounced a portion of it nothing more than "a repetition of hackneyed slogans of American propaganda."

The magazine Life Abroad also said the message shows that "the ruling quarters of the United States do not renounce their old bankrupt 'positions of strength' policy although they prefer to conduct it now in a more cautious and restrained way."

This harsh judgment—the first adverse Soviet comment on the President's message to Congress—could only mean that a considerable part of the bloom has worn off the initial honeymoon between Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev.

Last Tuesday, the day after Kennedy delivered the message, the government newspaper Izvestia commended the speech but made clear that Kennedy — and not Khrushchev — must shoulder the burden of improving Soviet-American relations.

"It is not our fault that dark clouds are found there," the newspaper said.

Izvestia joined Saturday with the editors of Life Abroad in taking a much sharper tone, especially on the problems of disarmament and Eastern Europe which are sensitive spots in the Kremlin's view of the world. The Izvestia article was signed by "Observer," usually reserved for authoritative pronouncements.

Order Five New Missile-Firing Polaris Subs

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy—responding to President Kennedy's speedup orders — Saturday authorized shipyards to make an immediate start on five new missile-firing Polaris submarines.

The five—of a new and bigger class—were planned originally for the next fiscal year starting July 1.

These 7,000-ton, 425-foot craft, costing about $109.5 million apiece, will complete a group of 19 approved so far by Congress. Eventually, the Navy hopes to have 45 missile subs on station and armed with nuclear-tipped Polaris rockets capable of hitting targets deep inland.

Three Polaris subs—the George Washington, the Patrick Henry and the Robert E. Lee—already are with the fleet. Eleven others are in various stages.

The Navy said Saturday it has assigned its Mare Island Naval Shipyard near San Francisco the job of building one of the five new subs.

At the same time, the Navy's Bureau of Ships signed letters of intent to contract for construction of two subs each by Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics Corp. at Groton, Conn., and the Newport News Shipbuilding & Drydock Co. at Newport News, Va.

These letters of intent will permit the shipyards to start at once the planning, design and ordering of materials that must precede actual building.

Polaris subs are designed to fire 16 Polaris missiles each while submerged, if necessary. The Polaris, a two-stage, solid-fuel weapon, has been developed to where it can reach 1,200 miles. Eventually, Navy designers expect it to span 2,500 miles.

Montgomery Calls Khrushchev 'Man Against War'

LONDON (AP)—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery Sunday delivered his newest judgment on Soviet Premier Khrushchev — that he is a man who "is against war."

The former deputy supreme commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Europe assessed the Soviet premier in a book, "The Path to Leadership," published in London.

"I am convinced," Montgomery wrote, "that Khrushchev is against war — not necessarily because he thinks war is wrong or evil, but because he reckons that the Soviet Union will be destroyed in a future war, and the rest of the world also."

Since retiring from his NATO post, Montgomery has visited the Soviet Union and Red China for talks with the leaders of the Communist world. On both occasions he came back with many favorable comments.

Anna May Wong, First Chinese Film Star, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Anna May Wong, silken-voiced symbol of Oriental mystery and beauty, is dead at 54. Hollywood's first Chinese star once told a movie columnist:

"When I die, my epitaph should be: I died a thousand deaths. That was the story of my film career.

"Most of the time I played in mystery and intrigue stories. They didn't know what to do with me at the end, so they killed me off."

Miss Wong died of a heart attack Friday night at her home in nearby Santa Monica. Funeral services are pending.

Her trademarks were large dark eyes, high rounded cheeks, dark bangs over her forehead and a soft, musical voice that was unmistakably Chinese—although she was born and reared in Los Angeles.

Her first big success was in the silent film "Thief of Bagdad" with Douglas Fairbanks. She made more than 80 films in Hollywood, Germany, France and England.

Many are now being shown on television. They included "Shanghai Express," "Old San Francisco," "Across to Singapore," "Forty Winks," "Toll of the Sea," "Chinatown Charlie," "Daughter of the Dragon," "Study in Scarlet," "Tiger Bay" and "Daughter of Shanghai."

Soviet Agrees To 6 Weeks Delay Of A-Test Ban Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet government agreed Saturday to President Kennedy's proposals for a six-weeks delay in negotiations on a treaty to ban nuclear weapons tests.

Kennedy has started a restudy of U. S. test ban policy.

The Moscow action, though perhaps a bit slow, was accepted here as another gesture of cooperation with the new U. S. administration. But in another development officials found evidence that the Washington-Moscow diplomatic honeymoon, dating from Kennedy's inauguration, is likely to be short lived.

This development was the publication in a Soviet magazine, Life Abroad, of sharp criticism of Kennedy's State of the Union message last Monday.

The State Department announced the Soviet's acceptance of the nuclear test talk postponement. Representatives of the United States, Soviet Union and Britain began negotiating for an agreement to prohibit nuclear weapons tests under an international inspection system at Geneva more than two years ago.

The conference was recessed in early December with an agreement to resume Feb. 7. Kennedy announced 10 days ago he was asking for a delay until late March; the State Department proposed March 21 as a new resumption date.

The Soviet note was relatively brief, officials estimating it at less than 300 words. It was read here as being civil in tone and free of propaganda.

It marked the second time that the Soviet government had responded favorably to a U. S. request since Kennedy took office Jan. 20.

On the first and far more important situation, Khrushchev ordered the release of two American airmen held since their reconnaissance plane was shot down over arctic waters last July.

Senate Leaders Study Kennedy's Economic Plans

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate's Democratic and Republican leaders disagreed Saturday on the effect President Kennedy's anti-recession program will have on the economy.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said he thinks an expansion of unemployment benefits, early payment of veterans insurance dividends and action to aid distressed areas will have an immediate uplifting effect.

"The President is watching the situation closely and if there are not definite signs of an upturn in 75 days he will propose additional measures," Mansfield said.

There has been speculation Kennedy might propose a temporary tax cut in that event.

Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said in a separate interview he thinks the Kennedy program "is bound to be slow moving."

Portuguese Reclaim Santa Maria, Galvao Rebels Cry Foul

RECIFE, Brazil (AP)—The Portuguese owners of the Santa Maria reclaimed the virtually deserted liner in Recife Harbor Saturday. Capt. Henrique Galvao's rebels cried foul from ashore.

Galvao, held in the police barracks of this tropical port with 21 fellow conspirators, was hoping for political asylum in Brazil and trying his best to save face.

His seagoing revolution yanked out from under him, he vowed to continue the fight against the Portuguese government of Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar on land.

To avoid the humiliation of a direct surrender to his enemies, Galvao turned the $16.6 million vessel over to Brazil Friday. Brazilian President Janio Quadros then announced that the vessel, second largest in Portugal's merchant fleet, would be handed back to the Portuguese government.

Galvao could hardly have been unaware that this would happen, but Saturday a rebel spokesman at the police barracks told newsmen he was incensed the ship is going back to "the dictator Salazar."

"We are shocked and taken by surprise," he said, "at the attitude of the Brazilian government, since it signed a document with us guaranteeing that the Santa Maria would stay under the Brazilian flag."

Kerner Advocates Strong National, Civil Defense

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Otto Kerner advocated a strong national and civil defense Saturday, and threw in endorsement of the military establishment he commands: the Illinois National Guard.

Kerner, a reserve officer who is a retired major general, prepared his remarks for the annual military dinner of the reserve officers.

He warned of an indifference to attack by ballistic missiles that "could, without advance warning of any kind, shatter Springfield, Peoria, Chicago, Centralia or any other town in Illinois or the United States."

The new governor by virtue of his office is commander-in-chief of the National Guard of the state. He said the guard is a large part of the nation's defense and deserves support.

"In recent years," he said, "there have been some efforts directed at downgrading the National Guard of the United States."

He pointed out the guard has a dual federal-state function and may be called out by either the President for a national emergency or by the governor in the event of a civil disturbance.

Two Kennedy Children Arrive At White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The two Kennedy children flew from Palm Beach, Fla., Saturday to join their parents at the White House.

The President and Mrs. Kennedy went to the airport for the reunion with Caroline, 3, and 2-month-old John Jr.

Caroline, in a yellow wool coat and hat, was gathered into her mother's arms as Mrs. Kennedy and the President went inside the Kennedy family plane to greet their children.

The plane "Caroline" taxied up to the snowy terminal at 3:55 p.m. where Kennedy and his wife had been waiting about seven minutes in the 36-degree, but sunny, weather.

While photographers snapped pictures, the Kennedys got into a White House car, with baby John, bundled in white blankets, on Mrs. Kennedy's lap. Caroline climbed aboard her father's knees for the ride to their new home.

When their limousine drew up to the White House entrance, Caroline was delighted to find a full-scale snowman waiting for her. Fashioned by head gardener Robert Redman, it had buttons made of coal and a carrot nose, wore an ancient Panama hat, and had a bow tie made of red ribbons.

While Mrs. Kennedy carried baby John out of the car and into the executive mansion, Caroline and her father made for the snowman. The little girl smiled hugely and patted its frosty legs.

PICOU, NEGRO MUSICIAN, DIES

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Alphonse Picou, one of the great Dixieland clarinet players, died Saturday. He was 82.

The Negro musician had been in the forefront of New Orleans jazz for 65 years. During that time he had played with the best-known Dixieland groups. His last appearances were with the late Papa Celestine.

Seven-Ton Space Ship Launched By Russians

Italians Receive Heartbeat Signals From Soviet Sputnik

TURIN, Italy (AP)—An Italian surgeon said Saturday there were sounds that might have been heartbeats and heavy breathing on a tape recording of radio signals on a frequency used by Soviet satellites.

The recording was made two nights ago by Achille and Giovan Battista Judica - Cordiglia, who monitored the signals on radio receiving equipment they have set up in their home to intercept American and Soviet space transmissions.

The same short wave signals were monitored by the observatory at Bochum, Germany.

The signals were received before the Soviet Union announced Saturday it had launched a giant new Sputnik. The Turin brothers said the signals were different from those they had heard previously from satellites.

"In addition to the usual bip-bip," Achille said, "it seemed to us that there were sounds indicating the movements of a human being or animal in a physical state of apparent difficulty."

"We could not be sure what these sounds were," said Giovan, "but we thought they might be moaning or heavy breathing of a being in difficulty in a space ship."

The brothers asked Prof. Mario Dogliotti, an internationally known surgeon, to listen to the recording.

"At intervals a rhythmic noise could be heard which repeated, with a frequency of 80 to 90 times per minute, the fundamental rhythm of the human heart or of the heart of a superior mammal," Dogliotti said in a statement.

Sen. Douglas Aide, McCulloch Named Head Of NLRB

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has chosen Frank W. McCulloch, administrative assistant to Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., to be chairman of the National Labor Relations Board.

"It's a terrific challenge and a great honor," McCulloch told a reporter Saturday after his appointment was announced.

McCulloch, 55, practiced law in Chicago after his graduation in 1929 from the Harvard Law School, and became active in social settlement work. He earned his bachelor's degree at Williams College in 1926.

In 1935, McCulloch was named industrial relations secretary of the Council for Social Action of the Congregational-Christian Church, a post he held until 1946.

In World War II, he was a public member of the Regional War Labor Board, and in 1946 became director of the Labor Education Division of Roosevelt College, Chicago.

He has been aide to Douglas since 1949.

The NLRB chairmanship is a $20,500-a-year position. On the board he will replace Arthur Kimball, who has been serving under a recess appointment.

Consider Boost In Membership Of House To 450

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders are considering the possibility of increasing membership of the House to prevent some states from losing seats through reapportionment.

No decision has been reached, but Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., said Saturday the matter is being studied.

The increase, if it should be decided on, would boost membership from 435 to 450. It could be done by act of Congress, requiring approval by both the Senate and the House as well as the President.

House membership now totals 437 under a temporary law which expires next year. This temporary increase gave one seat each to Alaska and Hawaii, the new states, pending reapportionment on the basis of the 1960 census.

Unless the size of the House is increased, 16 states will lose seats in the 1962 election and nine will gain.

The last permanent increase in House membership to 435 was based on the 1910 census, when the population was 92 million Prior to that the membership totaled 391.

Since then, the U.S. population has almost doubled and four states, Arizona, New Mexico, Alaska and Hawaii, have entered the Union.

When membership first was fixed at 435, each member theoretically represented about 211,000 constituents. Now the average is about 414,000.

If Congress leaves House membership at 435, Pennsylvania will lose three seats, New York, Massachusetts and Arkansas two each, and Alabama, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, North Carolina and West Virginia one each.

California would gain eight seats, Florida four, and Arizona, Hawaii, Maryland, Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio and Texas one each.

If membership of the House is boosted, it would also mean an increase in the electoral college used in choosing a president.

No Mention Made Whether Animal Or Man Aboard

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union Saturday launched the heaviest Sputnik in history—more than seven tons—as part of its program to develop a heavyweight space ship for manned flight.

The Moscow radio broke into its scheduled broadcast at 8 p.m. to announce the launching. It made no mention whether an animal or man was aboard and did not specify where or at what hour the Sputnik was launched.

The official announcement based on a Soviet Tass news agency statement, said the device was circling the earth every 89.1 minutes on an orbit at an inclination of 64 degrees, 57 minutes, reaching 203.5 miles from the earth at its farthest point and coming to within 138.5 miles at its closest point.

Apparatus on board functioned normally "while it was being put into orbit and during its further movement along the orbit," the statement said.

"The scientific and technical tasks set for the launching of the satellite have been carried out," it added.

Previous space ships launched by the Soviet space scientists were in the five-ton class.

Last May 15, a space ship was launched to test the separation of the capsule from its carrier, for return to earth on signal. It carried a dummy the size of a man inside a cabin that scientists said simulated temperature and space conditions an astronaut would travel in.

Last Aug. 19, the Soviet scientists sent up a number of animals including two dogs, Belka (Squirrel) and Strelka (Little Arrow), and announced the dogs were brought back alive after 24 hours aloft.

Last Dec. 1, the dogs Pchelka (Little Bee) and Mushka (Little Fly) were hurled into space in another five-tonner. In the recovery attempt, the space ship shot off course and burned up in outer space. The dogs died with it.

(There were rumors that the Soviet Union attempted and failed in another spectacular space ship experiment to mark Premier Khrushchev's visit to the United Nations last September and October. The Russians kept mum about this and there never was any confirmation).

The weight of the newest Soviet space ship was set at 6,483 kilograms or 14,292 pounds in the Tass announcement.

In terms of the U.S. weights, based on the short ton of 2,000 pounds, that put it in the 7.1-ton class.

Fear At Least 12 Buried By Slag Heap Avalanche

MOULIN-SOUS-FLERON, Belgium (AP) — Disaster workers dug three bodies from a sea of black mud and debris Saturday and feared at least a dozen other persons were buried by the slag heap avalanche that spilled through this village Friday night.

A snowstorm made rescue work more difficult.

First to be found were the bodies of a 40-year-old woman, her daughter, 12, and the 9-month-old baby daughter of a former Congo settler.

Municipal authorities said at least 12 other persons were caught under the slag and all are presumed dead.

The giant slag heap, on a hill overlooking the village, gave way when a load of cinders from a nearby electric power plant was being piled at the top. About six houses were swamped and 10 others were damaged. A butcher's shop was cut in two.

The missing include four children.

"All of them are probably dead," a relief worker told newsmen. "You see, this is not like a landslide where you can hope that the earth has been stopped somewhere.

"Here there is dust, piercing, penetrating dust, which infiltrates everywhere and suffocation must have overcome those who did not die under crumbling houses."

William Kelley Found Dead In Plane Wreckage

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah (AP) — William D. Kelley Jr., 36, technical director of the Allegany Instrument Co. of Cumberland, Md., was found dead Saturday in the wreckage of the light plane in which he disappeared last Thursday night on a flight from Salt Lake City to this northern Utah community. He was alone.

Kelley was in Salt Lake City for the convention of the American Rocket Society. He left about midnight Thursday in his Cessna 195 on the 50-mile flight. A snow squall developed. He did not file a flight plan.

The wreckage was spotted on a small hill called Magpie Peak about 20 miles northwest of Brigham City.

As I See It

by E. W. BROWN

Ever since the first caveman packed his ax and headed off to look for greener pastures, man has been searching for utopia. Now we see where there really is one, the Baltit Valley of Pakistan. But don't pack now, because there are problems in paradise. Heretofore, it's been a real Eden, people having lived there for nearly 2000 years without any violent crime, sickness, taxes, or any of the other problems besetting the rest of the world. In fact, with its healthy mountain climate, simple natural foods, and unhurried pace, folks often live to past 100. And that's the problem. Now paradise is packed, without enough land and/or jobs to cure its now-acute case of over population, so many are being forced to make an exodus from Eden. It's unfortunate, but maybe not really as tragic as it sounds. As some wise man once said, earthly paradise isn't a place, but a state of mind . . .

They're Hostesses With Twice The Mostest—

Twins Double Attention Aloft

"Doubly delightful" are words passengers use when twin airline hostesses Marilyn and Margaret Parrish are aboard.

CHICAGO — (NEA) — The passenger on the jet liner from Los Angeles to Chicago smiled broadly when the pretty brunette hostess served him champagne.

He settled back and thoughtfully contemplated the drink as the girl walked up to the forward lounge of the big plane. When he finished the last drop another hostess came up from the rear and said:

"Would you care for another glass, sir?"

The traveler looked around, swung his head toward the front of the plane where the first hostess was standing, and then back again to the girl at his side. It was the same face.

"N-n-n-no. No. Thanks," the passenger stammered. "I think I've had enough."

What shook him up has happened to many travelers on Continental Airline's jet flights between Los Angeles and Chicago, Denver and Kansas City. He had had the pleasantly unnerving experience of meeting Marilyn and Margaret Parrish, beautifully identical twin hostesses.

The 24-year-old girls, natives of Colorado now based in Los Angeles, have been baffling passengers for more than two years. Each has jet black hair, brown eyes, and a soft voice. Both weigh 110 pounds and measure 34-23-34. The only difference is that Marilyn, the eldest by 15 minutes, stands 5 feet 6, while Margaret is 5 feet 5½.

Although the Parrish sisters have done most things in life together, they have not always been inseparable. During one period, Margaret worked as a secretary in Denver and Marilyn attended Colorado State College at Fort Collins.

But even when they're apart they seem to have a mental telepathy that sometimes accompanies identical twins.

"One day, when I was in Denver and Marilyn was in Fort Collins," Margaret recalls, "we agreed to meet later in the day and when we got together we both had on the same outfits although we had not discussed what we would wear."

"Sometimes a passenger asks Margaret for coffee or a magazine," Marilyn says, "then he glares at ME when I pass by because I haven't brought it."

But there are advantages when it comes to the romance department.

"Once I goofed and made two dates," Margaret says, "So I persuaded Marilyn to go out with one of the fellows. I clued her in on some of the do's and don'ts to say, and she became me for the evening. It worked, too, until someone told him."

The girls, who are of English Irish and French extraction, live together in a Los Angeles apartment complete with swimming pool. Both like pastries, skiing tennis, Western living, sunbathing clothes that pack easily, swimming and "music which fits our moods."

Buying identical clothes sometimes poses a problem, the girls say, but shopkeepers usually greet them with glee. Margaret explains:

"When salespeople see us coming they know they might sell two dresses instead of one."

Organized Labor Seeks Blood Donors

An all-out effort to eliminate Morgan county's blood deficit will be made during 1961 if organized labor can help it! That was the theme of a special meeting held Friday noon by this group of men representing various trades and labor organizations in Jacksonville.

First Session Of Inquiry Class To Be Held Monday

The Inquiry Class, sponsored by Our Saviour Church, opens tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Routt Club Rooms at Routt high school. A series of twenty lectures on the fundamental doctrines of the Catholic Church, the class will be under the direction of the Rev. Alvin L. Campbell, assistant pastor of the local parish. It is open to all who wish to attend.

Father Campbell has conducted inquiry classes in Decatur and Springfield. Beginning with a lecture on the source material of Catholicism, the Bible, reason and tradition, the course will cover such topics as the divinity of Christ, the distinguishing marks of the Christian church, papal infallibility, indulgences, the commandments of God and the sacramental discipline of the Catholic Church. It will conclude with a guided tour of the parish church, during which the participants will be shown the various objects of devotion.

The lectures will be held every Monday and Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. There is no admission fee and pertinent literature will be distributed to those in attendance. The classes are primarily for those who are not Catholics. "No commitment is made by attending these classes," Father Campbell stated. "It is an 'inquiry class', not a 'convert' class. Whether anyone becomes a Catholic at the conclusion of these lectures is in the hands of God. We are anxious only for others to hear of the Catholic Church."

Slippery Street Causes Accident

Slippery conditions due to snow were blamed for a traffic accident at 11:25 o'clock Saturday morning in the 1000 block on South Main street. A car and taxicab were damaged, but the drivers escaped injury.

According to police report, Danny Willard of Meredosia, driving a 1929 Rambler American, slowed for the stop light at Morton avenue. A 1955 Plymouth driven by Kenneth R. Kinkade, 821 South Main street, owned by the Friendly Taxicab Co., collided with the Meredosia car. Both vehicles were traveling north.

Patrolman Herbert Dodsworth went to the place of the collision and rendered assistance.

Both Smith and Gibson attended the meeting to help coordinate the efforts of the local unions to further the Red Cross Blood Program for Morgan County.

The Red Cross Program has been running about 200 or more units of blood under what is used each year.

During 1960 more than 1,700 units of blood were used in both local hospitals, at no charge to the patient, plus additional units used by Morgan county residents at other hospitals throughout the country. All of this on a "no cost" basis to the patient. Hospital charges to administer the blood range from $2.50 to $4.00 per unit throughout the country.

The same quantity of blood obtained through commercial channels in most any hospital would average about $30 per unit, or approximately $50,000 for that quantity used in the country last year. The Red Cross program is carried on in the county without charge to residents, and is only one of the many services included in the overall Red Cross organization.

The Red Cross receives its operating funds from the Morgan County United Fund.

"There is no shortage of blood, and the situation in Morgan County has been compensated so far by the success of other chapters included in the Red Cross Regional blood bank," Gibson commented. "There is, however, a definite need to urge residents to give blood as often as possible when the bloodmobile makes its regular visits."

Organized labor in Jacksonville will make every effort to urge its members to give a pint of blood to help boost the efforts of the county-wide program. With the strengthened support of other organizations, the efforts of the labor unions in the Jacksonville area will help the county meet the quota.

There are a number of regular donors in the county who appear as often as possible, but the pressing need facing the overall program is to find new donors who would be willing to donate one or two pints each year to help keep the blood balance sheet in the black.

Highlanders Bump SIU (Alton,) 110-87

ALTON—Gary Little pitched in 26 points to become the first Highlander in MacMurray history to score 1,000 points or more as Coach Bill Wall's clan thumped Southern Illinois University (Alton Branch) Saturday night, 110-87. Little needed only three points to achieve his goal and he more than collected them with 19 points in the first half. The former JHS performer finished with 26 to boost his season's total to 1,023.

Ron Price, the Dorchester flash, was just five points off the 1,000 figure as he had needed 19 to accomplish the feat but he collected only 14. He can pick up the remaining five points against Illinois College Monday night if the Blueboys cooperate.

MacMurray broke the contest wide open to start the second half with Little and Price leading the surge. The Highlanders led by ten points most of the first half until SIU trimmed it to nine with a bucket just as the halftime buzzer sounded, 48-39. The Highlanders then jumped into a 70-48 spread with only six minutes gone in the second half and they were assured of victory number 12 in 16 starts.

Don McCarty, one of the six Highlanders in double figures, accounted for MacMurray's 100th and 101st tallies from a fast break layup with two minutes left in the contest.

SIU suffered its ninth loss in 14 starts.

Fabulous Buckeyes Rout Michigan, 80-58

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)— First-ranked Ohio State, runaway leader of the Big Ten, trounced Michigan 80-58 Saturday before 6,000 fans and a regional television audience.

The fabulous Buckeyes, now 16-0 for the season and 6-0 in the Big Ten, dispatched the conference cellar dwellers with an adding machine-offense in which three starters scored in double figures and the team shot at a 55 per cent clip.

Ohio State hit 33 of 60 field goal attempts.

Mel Nowell and John Havlicek each scored 18 points and All-America Jerry Lucas added 17.

Ohio State Coach Fred Taylor pulled his regulars with 9:10 to go in the second half and the Buckeyes leading 70-41.

Michigan's sharp shooting Capt. John Tidwell had 13 points before halftime and finished with 15, but yielded Wolverine scoring honors to Tom Cole, 6-foot-7 sophomore, who had 16.

With Lucas and company playing all of the first half against an aggressive but outmanned Michigan defense, the Ohioans shot 66.5 per cent in moving to a 45-28 halftime lead.

Havlicek, Ohio State's defensive specialist, was the big gun in the early scoring. He sank nine of nine shots from the floor before halftime. Lucas added 11 points and Nowell nine in the first half.

Taylor used 12 of his 13 players and 11 of them scored. The only Buckeye player who did not see action was Gary Gearhart, the usual No. 8 man who was hospitalized with a virus infection a few hours before the game.

Michigan held one statistical edge, outrebounding Ohio Sate 44-40. Cole, guarding Lucas tightly, picked off 17 rebounds to pace both teams in that department.

Lucas topped Ohio State with 11 rebounds.

By JOHN CAMPBELL

Winchester high school has sent teams to play in twelve regional championship games and played ten sectional tournament games. The Wildcats dropped their first regional title game to New Berlin in 1930 by 24-22 and met Pittsfield the next nine appearances in regional championship games. Greg Sloan's Pike County five won in 1941 by 48-23 while Win-Co-Hi took the honors the next season 25-24. In 1945 Winchester beat Pittsfield again 28-27 under Coach Bill Stickland. Pittsfield won the next three years over Winchester by scores of 47-24, 45-30 and 50-44 while Elgie Posey's club of 1950 beat Pittsfield 41-37. Walt Rucks coached Winchester to a 67-48 win over Pittsfield in 1955. The next two years found his teams losing to Pleasant Hill 58-49 and to Jacksonville high 56-48. Coach Jack Renfro's five of 1959 lost to Jacksonville's Crimsons 60-39 in the finals of the regional at Jacksonville.

The record for the Wildcats in Sectional tests finds five wins and five losses. New Berlin fell in 1941 by 20-9 while Beardstown won 36-26 that year. In 1942 Winchester beat Rushville 37-35, Notre Dame of Quincy 35-30 and lost in the title game to Cathedral of Springfield at Jacksonville's sectional meet 36-29. In 1943 Winchester lost to Quincy in their sectional 52-31. The 1950 season found Winchester playing Jacksonville at Quincy and winning 48-46 while Quincy won 68-36. The 1955 Winchester five beat Routt (Jacksonville) 59-52 and lost to Quincy again 64-41 at Jacksonville's sectional tourney. This might be the year for Winchester to go to the Sectional grind again as it has been six years since playing in sectional meets.

Since John Chapman took over the basketball coaching duties at Jacksonville high during the 1949-50 season the Crimsons have played in ten regional championship games, missing last year for the first time. His teams have played 14 sectional tourney tilts while Jacksonville high played in 15 since they were started back in 1922. Routt beat Jacksonville for the 1955 regional title at Franklin and the other regional opponents of the Crimsons in the championship games were Waverly, Ashland, ISD (2), Chapin, Routt (2), New Berlin and Winchester (2). Sectional opponents were Winchester, Quincy, Perry, Cathedral, Pittsfield, Astoria, Mason City, Plymouth, Notre Dame (Quincy), Springfield and Atlanta.

The South Central conference has an outstanding playmaker and scorer in 6-1 junior Bob Linton of Gillespie. He is averaging 20 points a game for the Miners of Macoupin County. Linton is one of the best guards in the South Central in years according to observers in that area.

Lewistown's Indians won 55-50 over Havana Tuesday to regain possession of the traditional stone axe, at least until the Veteran's Day football game next November. Members of Lewistown's Quarterback club had a chilli supper recently at the high school and it was voted to meet all during the school year, the fourth Wednesday of the month. Seven new members were accepted to make the membership 26 and it was announcd that $560 was netted from the Athletic banquet. This newly organized club is sponsor of the three year season tickets, priced at $20. Tickets entitle persons to choice seats at home games and tournaments in Lewistown. The tickets must be completely paid for to be entitled to these privileges and the ducats may be secured by paying $5 down and $5 monthly. According to the club, there's a possibility ticket prices might be increased and the season tickets would be a money saver. Coach Bill Wilson of Lewistown high had charge of the program and he explained statistics prepared on each boy in sports and showed a film of the Rushville-Lewistown game.

Haydon Johnson is Bradley's only varsity player to be declared ineligible while five Frosh cagers became classroom deficiencies including starters LaVern Tart of West Palm Beach, Fla. and Fred Gablenz of Evanston. Others lost were Sonny Brown of Abingdon, Mike Freshley of Niles, Mich. and Jeff Maddy of Albion, Iowa who left Peoria Thursday for home and he was en route to Kirksville, Mo. to pick up his girl friend who is attending college. Johnson is a soph from Kewanee.

Turner Tourney Opens Wednesday

Jonathan Turner's Devils are the defending champs in their own annual invitational basketball tourney which starts Wednesday. Meredosia's freshmen and Turner rate as favorites in the six-team event but there may be a few surprises from the other entries.

Games start at 6:30 and 7:45 each evening including Friday's finals.

Franklin's frosh open with Salem Lutheran Wednesday in the curtain raiser and the winner meets Meredosia's freshmen at 6:30 Thursday evening. The second game Wednesday pits Triopia's frosh against the Routt freshmen and the winner runs into host Turner at 7:45 Thursday night.

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Purdue's Terry Dischinger, the Big Ten's leading basketball scorer, stuffed in 30 points despite a split shooting finger and the Boilermakers defeated Wisconsin 69-58 in an afternoon game Saturday.

Dischinger fell in the first half, re-opening a cut on the middle finger of his right hand he suffered two weeks ago in a chemistry laboratory accident.

After time out to wrap the wound, the U.S. Olympic player went on to hit 11 of 14 shots from the field, convert 8 of 9 free throws and pull down 12 rebounds. He sat out eight minutes of the second half with four personals.

Wisconsin lost three players on personal fouls after keeping the game close through the first half. Purdue worked up a 37-33 lead at the half and never trailed in the second period.

Northern Mich. Ambushes MSU In 79-71 Surprise

MARQUETTE, Mich. (AP) —Little Northern Michigan lured big brother Michigan State to its home court Saturday night and then pulled a stunning 79-71 ambush for its first basketball victory ever over a Big Ten team.

The Wildcats chewed up the Spartans with a whirlwind finish which produced seven rapid-fire points in the last 78 seconds and sewed up the upset.

Northern, battling for national small college recognition, took every thing the Spartans had to offer right from the opening gun. In the first half, the rivals traded the lead 12 times and were deadlocked on 6 occasions. Northern led 44-43 at halftime and it was just as tight until the Wildcat spurt at the end.

Wayne Monson scored with 29 of Northern's points. Dick Hall topped Michigan State with 16.

Northern Michigan now has won all but one of its 14 games. The single loss was to third-ranked Bradley.

Duke Stymies North Carolina's Winning Streak

DURHAM, N. C. (AP) — Fourth-ranked Duke, sparked by sophomore Art Heyman's 36 points, snapped fifth-ranked North Carolina's winning streak at 12 straight Saturday night with an 81-77 victory in a tensely fought game which ended in a free-for-all between players and some spectators.

With 1:24 left to play, he dropped in a lay-up to put the Blue Devils ahead 74-73 after North Carolina had overcome a six-point deficit. The Blue Devils stayed ahead.

Duke, now 8-0 and in first place in the ACC, ran its victory string to seven in a row and avenged a 76-71 loss to archrival North Carolina in the final game of the Dixie Basketball Classic. Over-all, Duke is 16-1 and North Carolina 14-3.

Duke enjoyed six point leads five times during the first half but trailed 35-34 at the intermission.

Heyman dropped in eight points early in the second half to carry Duke to a five-point lead, 42-37. With 3:52 remaining, York Larese put the Tar Heels in front 71-70 and Jim Buddock followed with two free throws. Heyman came back with two quick goals and two free throws to send the Blue Devils to victory.

Ronnie Short of the winners led all scorers with 25 points. Short got hot in the third canto and tossed in 13.

SISTER ANTOINE WINS BY A WHISKER

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Sister Antoine, a 4-year-old filly who wouldn't have been in Saturday's $60,400 Santa Margarita Handicap except for three late scratches, came flying through the stretch to win it in a photo finish from Paris Pike and Geechee Lou.

Bill Harmatz gave Sister Antoine an energetic ride through the long stretch pull and got her up in time to overtake Paris Pike, who had taken a brief lead. The winning margin was a half length.

Sister Antoine paid $48.80, $22.40 and $13.40; Paris Pike $17.40 and $11.60, and Geechee Lou $5.

The winner's time for the mile and one-eighth was 1:49 3-5.

TEL AVIV, Israel—(NEA)—Make no mistake about it, Israel is in business.

Just about any business that will bring international prestige and an honest dollar to help stabilize the lusty young republic that has learned to walk with sure, steady steps and now is ready to run.

One of the more important new industries Israel is betting on is tourism. And sports play a major part in plans to lure carefree travelers to the land of the kibbutz which offers climate, terrain, the Mediterranean and just about every other natural asset to make the wayfarer happy. Until now, athletics in Israel largely have been conducted more for physical fitness than competition. Now come the Maccabiah Games, beckoning athletes from around the world to Ramat-Gan Stadium, outside Tel Aviv, next Aug. 29-Sept. 5.

The first long step toward creating a paradise for the vacationist was taken with the opening of a lush, 18-hole championship golf course—the first in all Israel—at historic Caesarea, roughly equidistant between Tel Aviv and the booming and beautiful Haifa.

Built at untold cost by the Edmond James de Rothschild Memorial Group, the Caesarea Golf and Country Club is a genuine seaside links surrounded by the Carmel Range, the Samaritan Mountains, the Hills of Judea and the impressive ruins of the Herodian, Roman and Byzantine ancient city and port of Caesarea.

The 100-acre layout, fashioned around carob trees hundreds of years old, is located on a 400-acre tract, given the club by the Rothschild family. Two years ago this property consisted of nothing more than the carob trees, scrub and sand dunes. Now 18 more holes are visioned along the Mediterranean coast, the next move of the Caesarea Development Association which plans a resort that will compete with Beirut, Lebanon, only a little more than 100 miles north, for the tourist trade in the Middle East. Caesarea is to become another Miami Beach. With the country's first golf course and that goes back more than 2,000 years.

Not all Israelis are in whole-hearted accord with this elaborate plan for attracting visitors. They fear that a display of such munificence will have an adverse effect on efforts to raise finances throughout the world by the sale of bonds, etc.

Max Rowe, representing the Rothschilds in Israel, leads those in sharp disagreement with such beliefs.

"We may be a year or two ahead of them, but they'll get around to our way of thinking," says the razor-minded and 40ish London attorney. "You cannot attract tourists with an austerity program."

The Caesarea Golf and Country Club already has 450 local members and no fewer than 3,500 non-resident members from other countries. There are members in the United States, Canada, Australia, South Africa, England, France, Germany and Belgium.

Like everything else in Israel, golf, its newest venture, is truly international.

Bellamy Leads Indiana Past Northwestern

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Walt Bellamy, 6-foot-10½ Olympic team veteran, stuffed in 34 points for Indiana University's basketball team Saturday night in the Hoosiers 90-78 Big Ten victory over Northwestern.

Bellamy played his best game of the season, faking Northwestern defenders out of position and driving for layups.

Tom Bolyard added 17 points and Gary Long 14 in the Hoosiers' third victory of four conference starts. They play league-leading and undefeated Ohio State Monday.

Bill Gibbs scored 19 and Ken Lutgens 16 for Northwestern. Brad Snyder also got 16 for the Wildcats, who were left with a 2-5 Big Ten record.

Indiana ran up an 8-1 lead at the start and had a cushion of 10 to 12 points through most of the game. The winners held a 46-34 margin at the half.

K-State Garners League Lead With Victory

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Kansas State went on a scoring spree in the final minutes and defeated Oklahoma 71-63 Saturday night. The victory gave the Wildcats the undisputed lead in the Big Eight basketball race.

Larry Comley set the pace as the Wildcats scored 12 straight points to put the game on ice after Oklahoma had struggled to a 55-55 tie with 6:23 to go.

Comley hit a jump shot and two free throws to make it 59-55, and his teammates kept the score going upward.

Comley was high with 28 points and led in rebounding with 12. The Wildcats' Cedric Price had 19 points and 10 rebounds.

Kansas State pushed its lead to 12 points early in the second half after holding a 37-26 margin. At that point Stan Morrison and Edward Evans began hitting for the Sooners and the gap closed slowly with OU finally tying the score at 55-55.

CARDS REFUSE BROWN

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Globe-Democrat reported Saturday the St. Louis football Cardinals have refused to trade halfback John David Crow even up for the Cleveland Browns' fullback Jimmy Brown.

Brown has been the National Football League's leading ground gainer for the past four seasons, but the Cardinals were said to believe Crow is the best in the business.

Downey Guides Illini By Minnesota, 65-60

The 6-4 sophomore pitched in 26 points and teamed with Bill Burwell and John Wessels to give Illinois backboard control in the crucial stages.

While Downey provided Illinois' scoring fireworks, Jerry Colangelo came off the bench in the final minutes to nail down the victory. Colangelo, his scoring gun spiked most of the game, fired the jump shot that gave Illinois a 57-56 lead with 2:45 remaining. Wessels hit two free throws and Colangelo pushed the Illinois advantage to 61-56 moments later. Downey and Wessels shielded the Illini against Minnesota's last gasp rally.

Minnesota sprinted into a 12-4 lead by running nine straight points before the Illini started pressing. With Wessels and Doug Mills leading the attack, Illinois hit 11 consecutive points and grabbed an 18-14 advantage midway in the first half.

The victory raised Illinois' Big Ten mark to 3-2. Minnesota levled at 4-4.

Coaches Bill Wall and Bill Merris of MacMurray and Illinois College, respectively, have voiced anxiety over their basketball meeting Monday night. They both feel they shouldn't have scheduled the contest but the date is fast approaching and it's too late to turn back now. Neither is too concerned about the final outcome, both want to win, but I feel they're worried about a repercussion among the student bodies. And the outcome doesn't necessarily mean the point difference! It all boils down to the first meeting between the two colleges in a major sport (they've met in wrestling competition) and the coaches fear some after-affects from the spirited rivalry. I told both coaches their lone worry was solving each other's attack and that the student body will take care of itself. Besides, if the college boys and girls can't behave like adults then they shouldn't be in school or allowed to go to an athletic contest which is solely for the participants only. After all, both colleges represent Jacksonville and should there be trouble it would reflect on the city by outsiders. I truly believe all the built-up anxieties are just a lot of hocus-pocus.

Merris glanced at the college newspaper Friday and read in print, "The boys in short skirts over on the east side have compiled an impressive 11 win, four loss record." My gosh, excaimed Merris, "When the tiger is asleep in his den don't try to awaken him. I wonder what they've put into Monday night's program?" Merris didn't mean that the Highlanders were asleep on the job but conceded the favorites shouldn't be aroused any further. "After all, we've got a tough enough job right now in stopping their running attack. Will we run with them? We'd be foolish to try. We'll play a control game but there won't be any stalling," Merris concluded.

I was greeted at MacMurray with a "Why did you put that foolish bet in the paper about a guy getting Illinois College and 26 points for even money?" from Coach Wall. I told Bill that was the only silly bet I'd heard floating around and just like Jack Fairfield I wouldn't give any team a 26-point margin if ISD grade school was playing the University of Illinois Monday night. The put-out Wall said, "Even if I did get a controlling lead, I'd never run up a score as it isn't my policy." The Highlanders, who have been idle for 13 days via examinations, went through a rigorious workout for their Saturday date with SIU (Alton branch) and really strained when they heard IC's game at Greenville had been called off. "The postponement means they're (IC) going to be fresh for us," Wall stated.

—0—

Senior Gary Little, the former JHS sharpshooter, went over the 1,000 point mark in his three full seasons with MacMurray as the Highlanders dumped SIU Saturday night. Ron Price needed just 19 points to hit the 1,000 point mark but he fell short and will undoubtedly pick them up against the Blueboys which would be a fitting tribute in a historical meeting of the two schools.

—0—

Joe Brooks, IC's athletic director, was busily engaged in supervising the erection of bleachers on the west side of Memorial gymnasium Friday afternoon and the talk eventually turned to spring sports but not before I asked Joe how many fans they were preparing for? "We can seat 2,000 right now and if need be we'll get some folding chairs just in case. And we're going to keep the ticket lines moving by setting up our outside booth. As to how the Blueboys are going to fare I can say they'll make a good showing if they play the game they are capable of playing," Brooks said before getting into spring sports. "My 14-game baseball schedule is to receive approval Monday by the board but I've really got an outstanding golf schedule. We're taking on the University of Illinois, Bradley and some other top-flight competition. We've got some excellent golfers and I thought I'd give these other schools a chance which may be their only one," the good natured Brooks joshed.

Dwaine Marten, MacMurray's wrestling mentor, has his baseball schedule ready which includes 13 dates involving 19 games. Six of the dates are of the twin-bill, seven inning variety. If the pitching corps comes through the MacMurray diamond nine will make it plenty rough for the opponents. Two of the dates are with Illinois College, one at the hilltop diamond and the other at Nichols Park. MacMurray's baseball diamond at the Routt street athletic field probably won't be ready until 1962. Coach Wall will double as golf and tennis coach with 13 dates listed for each sport. Athletic Director Dan Unruh will handle the track chores once again and he has carded ten dates for his thinlies. Unruh's harriers enjoyed considerable success last fall in their first attempt with the sport.

Without a doubt I'll claim Jacksonville's 105 points Friday against Kincaid as the all-time high in JHS basketball history. The Chapman crew has approached the century mark several times in his 12-year tenure and the closest they came as I recall was 99 points. Many veteran observers will claim the best JHS quintet was the 1911 bunch who won 13 straight before losing to Rockford, 39-23, in the state playoff. After checking with W. B. Rogers and George W. Vasconcellos, who steered me to Howard Stevenson, I gained some astonishing data concerning this team composed of Clarence Fuller, George Tandy, Earl Waters, Jay Rodgers, Wallace Spink and Julian Malone. Their coach was a fellow by the name of Buland. The rules varied drastically from the setup as we know them today and the scoring was usually in the low figures. As Mr. Stevenson read off the 1911 scores I scratched my bald surface in amazement. The 1911 Crimsons polished off Mason City, 100-9; Griggsville, 41-11; Springfield twice, 46-20, and 52-20; Spaulding of Peoria, 53-20; Taylorville, 37-14; Quincy, 47-17; Keokuk, 31-9; Quincy, 44-20; Bloomington, 36-30; Ipava, 76-17; Pittsfield, 29-15, and Taylorville, 43-7. I don't know how the game was played then which doesn't matter but Jacksonville outscoring its opponents 658-248 should be an indication of the scoring machine Coach Buland possessed. Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson, who reside on Mound Road, informed me they were graduates with the 1911 class and that they were looking forward to a 50-year class reunion with their old school chums this May. My informer was a football player and didn't play basketball because as he put it, "those boys were outstanding and it would have been hard to stack up to the ability of Buland's Big Six.

Scoring ace Fred Curtis put on another shooting exhibition before the New Berlin fans Friday night as he chucked in 36 points in Routt's 66-63 victory. Coach Winstead credited a press in the final four minutes and Curtis' scoring as the turning point in Routt's 16th win against five setbacks. The Rockets had been trailing by five points until the press went into effect. Curtis, a deadeye from the side, collected most of his points in that vicinity but from a 45-degree angle Winstead claimed. Curtis, who has hit 41 points in a single outing this season, upped his average to a respectable 19.8 figure per game. Three other Rockets, Ed Carroll, Jack Lawless and Bucky Sullivan, are also averaging twin-marks per contest. Routt averaged 38 per cent for the contest while Tony Dolenc's Pretzels hit 50 per cent. New Berlin had commanded a 13-point bulge at halftime via an uncatchable 68 per cent shooting clip in the first half. Winstead was pleased with the comeback and had plenty of praise for New Berlin's Carl Compardo, who wound up with 27 points, 18 of which came in the first half. The Rocket mentor feels undefeated Winchester is primed for an upset and it could come from the Pretzels when they tangle at New Berlin February 14. But no matter which team wins it's how they fare in regional competition that counts and their major concern is how to win the Jacksonville Regional which boils down to four teams—Winchester, New Berlin, Routt and JHS.

The rumor floating around to the effect that Monday's IC-MacMurray game is open to the students only is far from the truth. Everyone will be welcomed with open arms by the IC ticket-takers providing the fan has his ducat!

It Has Been A Long Wait But Clinton Fans Think This Is The Year

By LOU YOUNKIN
Decatur Herald & Review

CLINTON, Ill. (AP) — Clinton hasn't been represented in the state high school basketball tournament since 1918. And, in that meet 43 years ago at Springfield, the Maroons were knocked out in the first round.

It has been a long wait, but Clinton fans think this is the year the Maroons will return to the ranks of the "Sweet Sixteen."

Ranked eight in the current Associated Press poll, Clinton has won 18 of 19 games. The one loss was a 58-55 shocker to Cahokia in the semifinals of the Shelbyville invitational tourney last month. At the time, Cahokia had a feeble 2-11 record against Clinton's 14-0.

For those who doubt Clinton's true ability because of a weak schedule, it may be pointed out the Maroons own victories over Springfield Griffith, Pontiac, Lincoln and Bloomington, and two prize successes in the Pontiac tournament.

Clinton beat Waukegan and Springfield by identical 71 - 63 scores, coming from behind both times. It still is Springfield's only defeat.

A Clinton forte is its ability to win on the road. Of their 18 games played through Monday, the Maroons had played only three at home and none since Dec. 13. Seven of the 15 road games have been in tournaments.

Clinton personnel is the same that Coach Elmer Hunter guided to a 19-8 record in his first year at the De Witt County school with an enrollment of about 600 students.

The Maroons were upset by tiny Blue Mound last March in the Decatur sectional tournament.

Clinton has good, but not overpowering height. Heading the Maroons is 6-2 forward Bill McKeown, who missed the finish of the 1960 season because of a broken wrist. He is averaging 25.4 points and is No. 2 team rebounder.

Center Steve Helm, top rebounder who is 6-3, owns an 18-point average. Guards Tom Steward and Ron Hartsock are 6-2 and 5-9 and forward John May stands 6-0.

Steward, a team steadier, is hitting 13 points, while May is the club's defensive leader. Hartock, slick passer, is the "quarterback." Top reserves are Dick Griffin and Jim Wilson, both 6-0 and Larry Miller, 6-1. Seven of the first eight players are seniors. Miller is a junior.

Shooting over 42 per cent, Clinton has averaged 78 points while yielding 57 per game. Hunter feels the defensive average is misleading.

"A lot of those points are scored against us after I take ou the first five," he explained. With a 21-point winning spread, the first five has been rested plenty.

Name Norine C Harness Racing's Dash Champion

The bay mare, sired by William Cash, won 25 times and was second four times in 31 starts under the handling of reinsman Harold Pedersen.

Roy McGregor, four-year-old pacer owned by G. J. Bairon of Brantford, Ont., topped the North American listings with 28 sins. But he was not registered by the USTA, and he did not race in the United States.

Leading trotter was Tronia's Scotch, four-year-old mare with 21 victories. She's the property of Norman Robinson of Shipman, Ill., and Henry Sheneman of Hettick, Ill.

A total of 17,702 horses participated in 39,882 races during 1960, association records show. The year before, there were 16,666 starters in 38,905 races.

WALL HAS TWO ARTICLES IN ATHLETIC JOURNAL

Bill Wall, MacMurray College basketball coach, has recently published two sports articles in national publications. "Use Competition for Free Throw Practice," is printed in the November 1960 issue of the Athletic Journal. This article explains various drills in which pressure and competition are put into player practice of foul shooting.

The winter issue of Soccer Journal, the publication of the National Soccer Coaches Association, has as a feature article, "International Soccer in Russia—1960." Wall compiled the information for this article during his summer trip through the USSR.

First Meeting Between Schools Starts At Eight

A premier performance Monday evening in the Mound Ave. Gym as Illinois College's Blueboys host their cross-town rivals—the Highlanders from MacMurray College.

Both coaches Wall and Merris have had their cagers working out in the fieldhouse boiler rooms this week building up steam for their historic first meeting.

Since basketball's beginning at MacMurray in 1957, under Coach Bill Wall, the Highlanders have compiled a creditable record and have become a formidable opponent, winning 57 and losing only 30.

This season the Highlanders are continuing their tradition of balanced scoring with two senior guards, Gary Little, 5-9, Jacksonville, and Marv Hohenberger, 6-0, Ayersville, Ohio maintaining a slim lead. Little has 184 points for a 12.3 average and Hohenberger has 162 tallies for an average of 10.8.

In last week's NAIA District 20 release, the Highlanders were rated fourth in the district in team offense with a 77.9 point per game average, fourth in team defense, with a 69 average, and fifth in team free throws, with 57.6%. Gary Little was third in individual free throws with 84.3%.

The Blueboys, under the tutelage of Bill Merris, since 1957, have been hampered by the lack of outstanding material; however this year's squad has been sparked with the nucleus of Bill Schildman, 6-7, senior center from Jacksonville, freshman forward Mike Bandy, 6-2, from Tallula, two guards, Jim Costello, 5-10 senior from Jacksonville, and 5-9 sophomore Marlin Dawdy from White Hall, and W. W. Duncan, 6-4, freshman from Jacksonville.

Schildman, leading the Blueboys with 253 points has an average of 18.0 per game and has pulled down 165 rebounds, while Costello has pumped in 102 tallies for a 9.4 average.

MacMurray will have height and speed on the Blueboys, and will probably run all evening. "On the hill," Coach Merris has been stressing a control game, reminding the Moundsmen, "It's not the size of the dog in the fight, it's the size of the fight in the dog."

Odds 2-1 That Johnson Will Be New Champion

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The National Boxing Association will have a new light heavyweight champion Tuesday night, and the odds are 2-1 he will be Harold Johnson of Philadelphia.

The 32-year-old warrior takes on 23-year-old Jesse Bowdry of St. Louis in a 15-round bout at Convention Hall with the winner to be recognized as successor to the venerable Archie Moore, from whose brow the crown was removed by the NBA for failure to defend the title within what was considered a reasonable time.

The veteran and skillful Johnson, four of whose eight defeats were suffered at the hands of Moore, is considered by critics to pack too many guns for his youthful opponent, who jumped into the title picture through a decisive victory over Willie Pastrano.

Neither Johnson nor Bowdry has been defeated in Miami Beach appearances. Johnson fought here three times, his last appearance being a 10-round decision over Bob Satterfield, March 12, 1957. Bowdry has fought here four times, his 10-round decision over Pastrano last Dec. 27 being his most recent showing.

The bout will not be televised.

Tennis Fathers Give David Freed Another Chance

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — U.S. tennis fathers gave David Freed another chance as Davis Cup captain today and took new steps toward opening up competition to the pros.

Freed, 51-year-old Salt Lake City financier, was chosen by the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association to try to salvage the wreckage of the 1960 campaign which was marked by defeat and controversy.

"Hope springs eternal in the human breast," Freed said. "I debated a long time whether to accept. I welcome the chance to try to win back the cup."

Last year the Americans were beaten in the inter-zone finals at Perth, Australia, by Italy — the first time in more than 20 years they had failed to gain the challenge round—and later the team was criticized for so-called poor sportsmanship.

Two members of that team—Chuck McKinley, 19, of St. Louis and Dennis Ralston, 18, of Bakersfield, Calif.—are under a year's probation for their antics. McKinley, who hurled a racket into the stands at Perth, is under suspension until May 1, 1961.

Yet they are the two key members in Uncle Sam's plans for recovery of lost prestige now that their older teammates, Barry MacKay and Earl (Butch) Buchholz, have turned professional.

Bernard (Tut) Bartzen, 33, of Dallas, served as a sort of co-captain to Freed last year but will not have the same capacity in the 1961 setup.

"Bartzen asked to be relieved of this responsibility," said George Barnes of Chicago, president of the USLTA. "He wants to concentrate on his playing." Bartzen sat at courtside and helped Freed formulate strategy in the 1960 venture. This year Freed does it alone.

The USLTA, at the final meeting of its annual convention, also approved the open tennis plan submitted by Perry Jones of Los Angeles.

Under the plan, the United States will recommend to the International Lawn Tennis Federation, which meets in Stockholm in July, that each country may sanction an open tournament at its own discretion.

Professionals and amateurs would be permitted to play together where approved. Countries opposing open tennis could forbid their players to compete.

Swap Of Managers Sports Oddity Of '60

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

The game of musical chairs involving managers in big league baseball is old hat but trader Frank Lane and Bill Dewitt provided a bizarre twist by trading managers Joe Gordon and Jimmy Dykes last year.

The swap of managers was by far the sports oddity of 1960 in the opinion of 52 of the 144 sports writers and sportscasters who participated in the Associated Press' annual year-end poll. The aftermath was even funnier when Gordon and Lane wound up together again at Kansas City.

The Yanks' firing or "retiring" of 70-year-old Casey Stengel because he was too old rated second in the poll with 24 votes. Casey got the ax after he had captured his 10th pennant in 12 years at the helm of the Yanks and had won seven World Series.

Pittsburgh's victory over the Yanks in the World Series was third with 15 votes. The Pirates won their first pennant in 33 years and it was their first World Series conquest in 35 years.

The Chicago Cubs also came up with the unusual when they had Manager Charley Grimm change jobs with baseball broadcaster Lou Boudreau.

But it was the Gordon for Dykes deal that tickled the fancy of most of the experts.

"Why don't we make a really big deal?" asked Dewitt, president of the Detroit Tigers of Lane, general manager of the Cleveland Indians. "Let's trade managers."

What started out as a joke on the telephone was turned into reality two weeks later by these two opponents of the status quo.

So Dewitt sent Dykes to the Indians and Lane moved Gordon to the Tigers.

The year before Lane had fired Gordon and then re-hired him the next day with a raise in pay.

The season had barely ended when Gordon quit the Tigers and signed a two-year contract to manage Kansas City. So what happens next? Lane quits the Indians and signs as general manager of the Athletics, winding up again with his old pal Gordon.

Bowie Postpones Further Racing

BOWIE, Md. (AP) — Bowie Race Course, battered by snow since the opening of its scheduled 48-day meeting last month, Saturday postponed further racing at the southern Maryland track until next Wednesday.

The action came after officials cleared away portions of a seven-inch snow fall and found the track would require considerable work to be restored to running condition.

YORKY 1ST IN McLENNAN

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Calumet Farm's Yorky surged to the front in the stretch to take the 26th running of the $69,300 McLennan Handicap Saturday before the season's largest crowd of 22,328 at Hialeah Park.

The 4-year-old son of Bull-Lee-Waynoke finished 2¾ lengths in front of Gustave Ring's Don Poggio with Cain Hoy Stable's All Hands third, 2¾ lengths back.

Teamed as an entry with Calumet's On-and-On, Yorky paid $6, $3.10 and $2.70 in winning $45,045 for his owners. Don Poggio paid $5.80 and $4.10 and All Hands paid $8 to show.

The defending champion, W. Freeman Darby of St. Simon's Island, finished 11th at 170.

CHICAGO (AP)—A sharply curtailed supply of butcher hogs on Friday sent prices substantially higher and raised it to as much as 75 cents a hundredweight for the week.

The smaller supply was ascribed to the heavy snowstorm over much of the Midwest. However, until then offerings had been slightly above the same period of the previous week and pork loins in the wholesale trade had declined $1 a hundredweight.

A heavy supply of slaughter steers on Monday left a carryover on the market and weakened prices somewhat for the remainder of the week although offerings thereafter were not more than moderate. The decline ran to as much as $2 a hundredweight on offerings over 1,400 lbs, some of which were still unsold at week's end. Weights up to 1,350 lbs were 75 cents to $1.25 lower.

Despite a sheep supply 7 per cent smaller than last week, slaughter lambs were steady to 50 cents lower.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market forged new gains this week as President Kennedy's antirecession program, a successful rocket shoot and news of additional spending for space age defense spurred the advance.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks joined Standard & Poor's 500-stock index in making all-time highs. It was a continued process for Standard & Poor's 500, which reached a record the prior week.

The Dow Jones industrial average, however, still remained substantially below its record peak of 685.47 reached Jan. 5, 1960. This week the Dow industrials rose 9.38 to 652.97.

It was the sixth straight week of market advance and an extension of the steady though irregular rise which began from the 1960 low reached last Oct. 25.

The recovery last fall—even in advance of the election — was called a "Kennedy bull market" by some analysts. This label was a matter of opinion at the time, but there was no doubt this week that stocks rose directly in response to the new President's State of the Union address and his economic message to Congress.

Kennedy called for a swift bolstering of U.S. defenses, a broad antirecession program and strengthening of the dollar. His recommendations for increased spending on medical care, defense and other programs conveyed somewhat of an inflationary impact to Wall Street and this is bullish for stocks.

At the same time, Kennedy's pledge of a sound dollar was reassuring, except for the price of gold bullion abroad and to gold mining shares, both of which declined.

Aircraft - missile - electronics shares were boosted by the successful Minuteman launching, by Kennedy's direct orders for more Polaris missiles and by the Defense Department ordering of more planes.

The AP 60-stock average this week rose 3.90 to 236.50, closing just slightly below the new historic record of 236.70 reached on Thursday. This topped the previous record of 235.80 reached Aug. 3, 1959.

The week's volume of 24,397,172 shares compared with 21,899,864 last week and was the greatest for any week since the one ended Oct. 18, 1958, which produced turnover of 24,402,570 shares.

As January trading came to an end on Tuesday, the month's volume showed 89,106,085 shares, the largest for any January since 1929 when 110,803,940 shares changed hands. During the first month of 1961, the over-all price of stocks increased by more than 5 per cent, based on the advance in popular averages.

The most active issue this week on the American Stock Exchange was Fox Head Brewing, up ⅝ at 2½ on 139,900 shares.

A presidential statement on interest rates and a Treasury refunding plan bolstered an unsteady bond market late this week.

The twin support was enough to keep both corporate and U.S. government lists on the upside—the fifth straight for corporates and third in a row for Treasury securities.

For the first three days of the week prices lost almost all forward momentum. Wednesday was a particularly listless session. Then on Thursday the President and the Treasury swung into action.

In his economic message President Kennedy said the government would support short-term interest rates from any further slide and at the same time would work toward lower long-term rates.

The declaration was enough to inject immediate new life into government bonds, particularly the long maturities. They jumped ½ point at once. By the end of the week almost all Treasury bonds were up ⅝ to a full point. Last week the best advance was under ¾ point.

After the close Thursday the Treasury came through with the long-awaited plans for the administration's first refinancing. The Treasury will issue $6.9 billion of 18-month notes carrying 3¾ per cent interest. Proceeds from the cash sale will be used to pay off $6.9 billion of 4⅞ per cent certificates maturing Feb. 15.

Corporate trading on the New York Stock Exchange soared to $8.77 million par value on Monday—the busiest day since Sept. 22, 1959. The weekly total hit $39,016,000 and again was the highest since Sept. 21-25, 1959. Last week's total was $38,216,000. The daily average rose to $7,803,200 from $7,643,200 last week.

WEEK'S GRAIN FUTURES POSTED BROAD GAINS

By GIL MAYO
AP Business News Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—Grain futures advanced on a broad front again this week with wheat, corn and soybeans posting their highest levels of the season in at least some contracts.

Day-to-day changes generally were small, though, except in soybeans, which twice ran the range of the 10-cent limit allowed for a single day on the Board of Trade. Once they came under the heaviest selling pressure in several weeks and slumped the limit for a short time. That was on Tuesday. The next day they ran up the limit in spots. Thereafter they shifted within a more moderate range of around two to five cents and with less net for the day.

Speculative trading continued to be the dominant factor in that commodity, influenced generally by the strength or weakness in the by-products, soybean oil and soybean meal. At times, however, some brokers said the soybean trade itself influenced rather than was influenced by its derivatives.

At the end of the week, soybeans were 3¾-7¼ cents a bushel higher, March $2.66¾-68; wheat ⅞ lower to 2½ higher, March $2.14⅛-¼; corn 3¼-6 cents higher, March $1.17⅛-¼; oats 1½-3⅛ higher, March 67¼; rye 5⅝-7¾ higher, March $1.22¼.

Since the runup in soybeans began early in December there have been only two weeks of net losses and in neither instance were those general setbacks. Starting at $2.30 a bushel for the nearby contract on January 1, the advance at one time this week had run to almost $2.71 on the March delivery, which is now the nearby month.

For the week, the March delivery ranged from a low of $2.55½ cents to $2.70¾ but ended with a net gain of 7¼ cents at the extreme.

Activity in the grain pits was relatively light but with setbacks few and small. A good deal of the consideration there was linked with the talk emanating from Washington that Congress will be asked to boost government price supports rather sharply, perhaps this year.

KENNEDY GETS SOVIET SIGNALS, HONEYMOON'S OVER

What especially aroused Life Abroad—a new magazine devoted to Soviet views on foreign developments and published by the Soviet Union of Journalists — was Kennedy's statement that communism still strives to achieve world domination.

The magazine said this is "a repetition of the hackneyed slogans of American propaganda which by its clamor about the 'Communist menace' has attempted to cover up the aggressive policy of the United States entwining the world with a net of military blocs ringing the U.S.S.R. with military bases."

CHICAGO (AP) — Estimated livestock receipts for Monday are 7,000 hogs, 19,000 cattle and 4,000 sheep.

STORM PARALYZES NORTHEAST—DEATH TOLL MOUNTS

too. The death toll from the two-pronged storm, sweeping in from the Midwest and up from the middle eastern seaboard, climbed past 60. The storm centered late Saturday on New York State and aimed a smothering wallop at New England.

More than two feet of snow were measured in many areas.

The metropolis, since Friday night, had 16 inches of snow, and Mayor Robert Wagner issued an emergency order banning all private traffic. He said stalled cars were filling the streets and blocking snowplows.

States of emergency were proclaimed in Nassau County on Long Island, where 1,500 stranded cars cluttered the snow-bound roadways. Emergencies also were proclaimed in upstate Syracuse and Utica, N.Y., paralyzed by more than two feet of snow, and in Saugerities, N.Y., where seven-foot drifts filled roadways.

Throughout the storm-battered region, ranging from the Carolinas northward and into the central states, transportation was crippled and slowed. Many power lines were out of commission, and normal activities disrupted.

However, the weather generally eased except in the Northeast.

It was the third major storm in six weeks for much of this area, and came in the wake of a record 16 days of subfreezing temperatures, the first time it had been that cold for that long since 1880.

In the midst of the snowfall, the reading in New York edged up to 32 degrees, but then dipped again, as the wind rose from 28 miles per hour toward a predicted 35 to 45.

In neighboring New Jersey, the snow smashed past records, a 17.3-inch fall bringing the seasonal total to 63.5 inches, an inch more than the previous 62.5 inches sit in 1947-48.

But snow was a lifesaver for 4-year-old Andrew Leary, who fell from a sixth-floor apartment window in Union City, N.J., but suffered only minor injuries because he landed in a snowbank.

All metropolitan airports were shut down. At Idlewild, four huge planes were so heaped with snow they couldn't be hauled to hangars.

Mail and food deliveries were hampered.

Pennsylvania had a foot of snow, and twice that in spots, with biting winds. Harrisburg's 10 inches brought its year's total to 67 inches, breaking a 68-year record.

In Boston, gale winds and high tides came with the downfall, which was expected to reach up to a foot in northern New England. The Boston & Maine Railroad canceled all service.

The New Haven Railroad closed its New Canaan to Stamford line. The Hudson & Manhattan shut down its Newark to Jersey City, N.J., service.

Other railroad lines in the region struggled along, with individual trains canceled or far behind schedule. One New York Central train pushed another broken-down train into Grand Central Station.

On the tail of the storm in the West, a search still was on for a manufacturing executive, William D. Kelley Jr., of Cumberland, Md., who took off from Salt Lake City in a light plane and headed north into a thick snow.

In Colorado, three other persons were missing in a small plane on a flight from Denver to Alamosa. Two others were missing in a plane flying through a snowstorm over southwestern Wyoming.

Two Colorado Springs high school students were killed Friday night when a car went off the road in blinding snow.

Generally, however, the brunt of the storm seemed over in the West, with only light flurries still reported in snow-laden Ohio, Illinois and neighboring states, also along the southern Atlantic coast the sun came out as cities began digging out of the snow.

But more snow was forseen in parts of Oklahoma and Kansas.

In Virginia, wrapped in an ice-coated snow blanket measuring up to 14 inches, the skies cleared, but highways remained slick and dangerous. West Virginia was shoveling out of a snow that reached up to 25 inches in spots.

In the Far West, it was sunny. Los Angeles had 76 degrees.

TAX COLLECTOR'S WOES

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Troubles at the office of St. Louis County Collector Ralph L. Devereaux are not due entirely to delinquent taxpayers.

The office sends back to a taxpayer, as a receipt, the original tax bill, marked paid. Devereaux reported Saturday that 500 taxpayers have returned the receipted bill to his office, with a second payment in full.

And then there is the woman who sent County Assessor Francis H. Kennedy a check for $20,000 upon being informed the assessed valuation of her home had been increased to $20,000.

MRS. SAMUEL A. MUDD DIES

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Mrs. Samuel Alexander Mudd Jr., 86, member of a family prominent since Civil War days, died Friday night in a Baltimore hospital after a long illness.

Mrs. Mudd was the daughter-in-law of Dr. Samuel Alexander Mudd. The doctor treated the broken leg of John Wilkes Booth after the actor shot President Abraham Lincoln.

For this, Dr. Mudd was sentenced to life imprisonment, but later was pardoned.

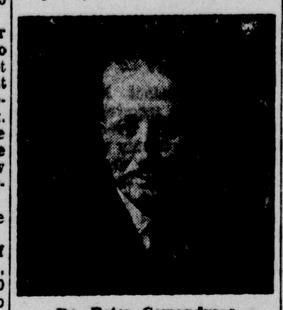
Dr. Comanduras, MEDICO Man, To Lecture In City

Dr. Peter Comanduras, secretary-general of MEDICO, will lecture in Annie Merner Chapel at MacMurray College Tuesday, Feb. 7, at 7:30 p.m.

MEDICO (Medical International Cooperation) is organized to wage an unceasing war against disease around the world. It sends teams of physicians and medically trained assistants into the underdeveloped areas of the world, where they build, equip and staff medical clinics and small hospitals.



Dr. Peter Comanduras

The movement is a real "people-to-people" concept carried out at the grass-roots level through a physician-to-patient program. It is based not just on the concept of making friends, but on the more fundamental desire of America to share its knowledge and skills with the needy sick.

Dr. Comanduras undertook the important task of administering the International medical humanitarian program of MEDICO late in 1957, giving up his private practice in Washington, D. C.

He had been head of the Department of Gastro - Intestinal Medicine at the George Washington University, Associate Professor of Clinical Medicine at the University's Medical School, and consultant to hospitals in Washington and Virginia communities.

A native of Massachusetts and a graduate of Tufts University, Dr. Comanduras completed his specialty training at the University of Pennsylvania. He later served at the Lahey Clinic in Boston and at the Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit.

He makes his home in Arlington, Va., but his work for MEDICO takes him regularly to New York as well as all over the country — and recently around the world.

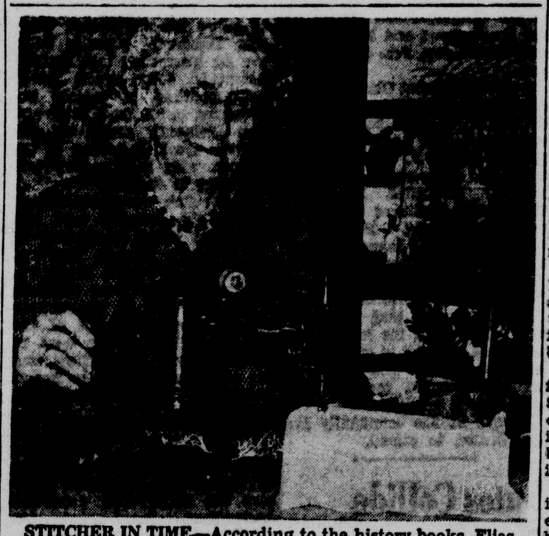
"Also audible are some sounds which recall, in an impressive way, difficult breathing. On the whole, the sounds might be those suggested from a human being or superior mammal, but it cannot be stated definitely."

The radio signals heard by the Italian brothers were at the same time and on the same frequency as those reported by the Bochum observatory. The observatory said it also heard fragments of Russian language speech on another frequency so close to the first one that they seemed to have some relationship to each other. The observatory located the signals as in or near the Soviet Union, emanating from an object in motion.



STITCHER IN TIME—According to the history books, Elias Howe invented the sewing machine and patented it in 1846. However, 84-year-old Mrs. Ray Evanson of Oshkosh, Wis., has a sewing machine which bears the patent date of 1836. The machine is a Melceums chain stitch. The antique, which still works well, was used by Mrs. Evanson's grandmother, who made all her family's clothes on it, including her husband's suits.

Mrs. Whitney, Greene Native Dies Saturday

ROODHOUSE—Mrs. C. G. Whitney of Seattle, Wash., formerly of Roodhouse, died Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at University Hospital in Washington following heart surgery. She was a native of Greene County born June 25, 1921, east of Roodhouse.

Her parents were James and Alta Brown Ballard and they preceded her in death while she was quite young. Following the death of her parents she grew up in the home of an uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Castel of Roodhouse.

She is survived by her husband, and two daughters, Janice and Susan, at home; and a sister, Mrs. Earl Holmes of Indianapolis, Ind.

The body is at the Faull Funeral Home in Rentom, Wash. Private services and burial will be held there Tuesday. Mrs. Whitney requested that at her death flowers be omitted and instead donations be made to the Heart Fund.

Senate Leaders Study Kennedy's Economic Plans

Moreover, Dirksen said Republicans remain to be convinced that the country ought to resort to some of the measures Kennedy suggested.

We're going to take a good look at the figures and insist that the administration justify its estimates," Dirksen said.

"If Republicans can help it, we're not going to extremes because of the President's allegation that the situation is black. He'll have to prove it."

The Kennedy administration will start moving Monday on one element of its anti-recession program—a bill to provide funds for emergency extension of unemployment benefits for workers who have used up their rights.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee will introduce that bill and a companion measure to make payments available to the children of unemployed parents. Such benefits now go to orphans and children who have been deserted.

Added unemployment benefits would be provided for up to 13 weeks. If all states participate, the administration has estimated the maximum cost would be $950 million.

Dirksen questioned whether Kennedy's actions to ease credit and to pump additional cash into the economy will result in any immediate substantial increase in business activity.

He said an increase in savings from $18.9 billion in 1952 to $29.2 billion in 1960 indicates some of this money will find its way into bank accounts rather than being used to buy goods and services.

Dirksen said Kennedy's action in ordering a reduction of interest rates on government-insured housing mortgages could have an adverse effect if capital flows abroad to get higher rates.

Seven-Ton Space Ship Launched By Russians

By Soviet calculation it was a 6½-ton affair, using metric standards that would make its weight 6.48 metric tons.

Tass said the announced weight did not include that of the last stage of what it called an improved multistage rocket.

Last Tuesday, the United States sent Ham, a chimpansee, soaring high into space in a space capsule weighing 2,400 pounds and almost simultaneously orbited the Samos II satellite whose weight, including instrumentation in the final stage, was announced as 4,100 pounds.

The U. S. Discoverer series of earth satellites were chiefly in the 1,700-pound range, but Discoverer XVII launched last Nov. 12 was orbited at 2,100 pounds and its 300-pound re-entry capsule was ejected and caught safely in the Pacific two days later.

Discoverer XIX, sent up last December to take the earth's temperature, also had a 2,100-pound payload. It burned up late last month after more than 400 orbits around the earth.

The heaviest U. S. satellite was the 9,000-pound—4½ tons—Atlas-Score that was launched Dec. 18, 1959. It broadcast President Eisenhower's Christmas message and relayed radio messages from ground stations.

The Midas II launched last May 24 had a 5,000-pound payload. It was intended to test a system for detecting missile launchings.

One Western space expert hailed the newest Soviet launching as demonstrating "beyond any shadow of doubt that problems confronting man's orbital flight, in terms of power, have been overcome."

The expert was Leonard J. Carter, secretary of the British Interplanetary Society who said a 7-ton satellite removes all doubt that it is "big enough to carry not one but two men on an earth orbit for a period of five or six days. There is no longer any impediment at all to man flying around this world." But he gave no estimate of Soviet ability to bring fliers back.

Physicist Harrie Massey, another British expert, voiced some reservations.

"It's a step forward but not necessarily a big step," he said. "A mere increase in the size of a satellite does not add much to our understanding of the problems involved."

He said the Tass announcement gave little information on the load of instruments and the data they provide.

"That's what counts," he said in London.

A North American military station was among the first to confirm the new Sputnik's orbits. A spokesman for NORAD, the North American Air Defense Command, said in Colorado Springs, Colo., that its monitoring stations had traced the new Sputnik through six orbits early Saturday. It was broadcasting some kind of signal, he said.

On Friday, an official of an observatory in Bochum, Germany, reported his station two days ago had picked up radio signals coming from an object in motion in or near the Soviet Union area on a frequency used before by Soviet satellite objects. Mysterious Russian voice fragments also were reported heard.

German Ace Wins International Slalom Derby

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Hanspeter Lanig, a blond German Olympic ace, won the International Slalom Derby Saturday with a margin of six seconds over his nearest rival.

In races through two 58-gate, 3,000-yard courses Saturday, Lanig finished second and 10th, but his over-all time for the two-day event was the best in the field.

The premeet favorite, Fritz Wagenerberger of Traunstein, Germany, was first in both races Saturday. But he was disqualified for missing a gate in Friday's opening event, and was ineligible for the slalom championship.

The best time for a single race was turned in by 17-year-old Billy Kidd of Stowe, Vt., who darted down the court in 59.1 seconds. He was the only one among Saturday's competitors to beat one minute. He, too, was disqualified for the over-all competition Friday.

The event is run on a complicated formula. Two separate courses are laid out, and each skier races twice through the gates. The skier with the best over-all time for a total of eight races is the winner.

PORTUGUESE OWNERS RECLAIM SANTA MARIA

This was the first mention of any such document, if it exists at all. In accepting the vessel from Galvao, the Brazilians had delicately asked Galvao only if he would turn the ship over to them. He agreed.

After the Brazilians turned the ship over to the Portuguese government, Portuguese officials returned it to its owners, the Colonial Navigation Co.

Thus ended at least the seagoing phase of a bizarre revolution that began in the Caribbean Jan. 22. The liner's stack was smudged with soot and her air-conditioning system, out of order even before the rebels took over, had not been repaired.

Now begins a legal phase that may be tangled in Brazilian courts for a long time. The ship's owners are believed planning action against Galvao for the seizing, in which a ship's officer was killed. The rebel chief's lawyer, Alvaro Lins, also is reported planning to appeal in court for return of the liner, claiming it as a prize of war.

Although the rebel band was originally reported to have numbered 70, there were only about 30 when the Santa Maria finally arrived in Recife. The ship's 600 passengers and 368 crewmen were close to counter-mutiny—or counterrevolution if Galvao's status as strictly a political insurgent is granted.

Food supplies, fresh water and fuel were almost exhausted by the chase through the Caribbean and South Atlantic, and Galvao had little choice but to give up.

STATED MEETING

Joe Denham, W.M.

Convocation Speaker

Professor George Horton, chairman of the Physics Department at Illinois College, will present "The Utility of the Useless," before the College convocation Monday, February 6.

In cooperation with the National Science Foundation and sponsored by the American Institute of Physics, Professor Horton has presently ended a tour of southern Illinois high schools speaking before assemblies and physics classes.

Since 1931, Professor Horton has presented this thought-provoking lecture on 42 different occasions in five different states before 6,000 persons, modifying his method as scientific discoveries have improved.

Using an imposing array of scientific apparatus from the College's physics laboratory, Professor Horton will demonstrate how many of today's notable scientific achievements were completely useless at the time of their discovery. He will explain that since discovery constitutes a revelation of truth, further study and experimentation which have been ultimately disclosed do result in developments which are of much practical value to the human race.

One Killed, Three Hurt In Collision Near Jerseyville

JERSEYVILLE, Ill. (AP)—The collision of a car and a tractor trailer on alternate U.S. 67 killed one person and injured three Friday.

Snow Brings Eerie Quietness To New York City

NEW YORK (AP)—The big city was strangely quiet Saturday night, and almost motionless, beneath its mantle of white.

The avalanche of snow stopped before sunset, but the 24-hour downfall left New York in a sort of suspended animation.

Usually crowded avenues were a chill desert.

No horns blew. No traffic cop whistles shrilled. A stillness held the city.

Use of private cars was banned, not that they could make much progress anyhow in the snow-choked streets.

But it left the ordinarily congested thoroughfares in eerie tranquility and ghostly hue.

Bus service also was drastically reduced, and some lines shut down completely.

What few moved crawled along behind snowplows.

Up and down the lighted avenues, scarcely anything else moved.

Occasional pedestrians, lonely, black figures against the ubiquitous white, trudged through the drifts.

The 17-inch snowfall was the greatest accumulation for any 24-hour period of February since measuring of snow began here in 1869, and the biggest of the winter.

It came on top of a six-week series of snows, including 15.2 inches last Dec. 11 and 12.

However, the city's biggest, fastest snow on record still remained the 28 inches set in the storm of Dec. 26-27, 1947. In that one, 26.4 inches of it fell in 24 hours.

Most stores shut their doors.

Milk and other delivery trucks quit running.

Housewives quickly exhausted the supply of milk at scattered still-operating delicatessens, and resorted to use of canned milk for their young.

Most subways still ran, but commuter and other trains were uncertain.

It was a silent night in the city. The hubbub had ceased. And it would be a silent Sunday, when you could hear the church bells of Manhattan.

SHOW GOES ON

NEW YORK (AP)—Through all the turmoil, the show biz attitude was the show—you guessed it—must go on. Here's how some of the Broadway stars made it to Saturday's matinees:

Ethel Merman hitched a ride with a doctor driving to a hospital. Sir Laurence Olivier slogged 32 blocks on foot. His costar, Anthony Quinn, arrived via a truck returning costumes from the cleaners. Phil Silvers traveled on a newspaper delivery truck.

Legible Writing, Printing Needed On Tax Forms

Legible printing of taxpayers' names and addresses on the top lines of 1960 individual Federal income tax returns will assist both the taxpayers and Internal Revenue Service, Jay G. Philpott, Director for the Springfield District, said Saturday.

"A carefully printed or typewritten identification of the person or persons filing will make it immediately possible for the Revenue Service to credit the return and any accompanying payment to the right source," Mr. Philpott said.

It also will help speed refunds to those whose returns call for refund checks.

"When taxpayers move, particularly during or near the filing period," Director Philpott said, "they should make sure the postmaster gets their forwarding address, especially if they are due refunds."

The taxpayer who has printed and signed legibly knows his return will be properly processed; the IRS in turn can do that processing with greater speed and accuracy.

Students, Police Clash In Rome For Fourth Day

ROME (AP) — Teen-age students and steel-helmeted riot police battled in Roman streets Saturday as Fascist politicians sought to turn anti-Austrian demonstrators against both Italy's middle-road government and the Communist party.

It was the fourth day in a row that students, many of them still in short trousers, took to the streets for protest rallies in Italy's dispute with Austria over the South Tyrol.

Dozens of police and students suffered minor injuries in the previous street clashes, and at least a score more were hurt Saturday.

At one point a sports car driven by American actor John Barrymore Jr., was caught in the traffic jam created by the marching students. Barrymore started blowing his horn. Several students jumped on the car and smashed its windows. Barrymore was not hurt.

As on the previous days, gangs of book-carrying youths — including a sprinkling of pig-tailed girls — tried to stone the Austrian embassy. They were driven off by police.

But unlike the previous days, a large portion of the students also turned their ire on Italians.

These were students who accepted the leadership of members of the Fascist Italian Social Movement. They constituted only a minority of the demonstrating students, but perhaps were the noisiest single group.

The Fascists claim the Christian Democrat government and the Communists have been lenient with Austria and the South Tyrol People's party — SVP — in the dispute. The Fascists oppose further talks with Austria and want the SVP banned. The government has rejected both demands. The Communists have taken the same line as the government.

Austria claims Italy is not respecting the full rights of German-speaking residents in the South Tyrol, a border area ceded to Italy by Austria after World War I. The SVP is the main political organization of the German-speaking residents.

Rome has insisted that the rights of all South Tyrol inhabitants are being respected.

With Authority

Often it is said that the U.S. presidency is what the man makes it. In a short space of days, President Kennedy has made abundantly clear that he intends to use its authority to the hilt.

As with his first press conference, his first State of the Union address to Congress was tough, realistic, bristling with the lexicon of leadership, tinged with the eloquence that can lift men up and set them to laboring at hard tasks.

Whether the great bulk of the American people will in fact follow Kennedy's lead as he sets out his specific legislative proposals is something we cannot yet know.

But it is evident from expert samplings of opinion that his crisp, sure-handed conduct in the White House has impressed many, including many Republicans, who did not vote for him in November. The GOP dissent from his speech in Congress does not appear to alter this situation.

That dissent questioned whether he could accomplish his welfare objectives and potentially costly new foreign assistance programs and still maintain the dollar's soundness. It asked how inflation and the gold outflow could be checked under such pressures.

In his appraisal of our defense posture, our position with both tried friends and neutrals abroad, our economic condition at home, the President was direct, candid, sobering.

Some who heard him speak disagreed that things were as bad as he said they were. The outsider looking in cannot know what facts Kennedy has been studying since he took over.

The really notable feature of the speech, indeed, is that while it is grim it is not gloomy. It points to peril, but declares confidently that we can surmount the danger if we understand it and grapple with it.

Nor does the President dwell wholly on the menace hostile communism represents to free men.

Through all his public utterances he drums insistently on the positive side of life, on the things free men can do for themselves and each other because they are right and not simply because they are a way of fighting off Moscow and Peiping.

Kennedy inherited a general domestic and world situation he believes is gravely challenging. Whether or not all Americans agree with his appraisal, they cannot question that he has been brutally frank in laying the story before them as he sees it.

Possibly the greater test of the President's evident strong urge to candor, however, may come a year from now when he must report again to the Congress and the nation. If he finds the situation still fundamentally grim, he will have the chance to prove his courage by saying so.

By then the country will have a much fuller notion whether the earmarks of firm leadership he now displays are the real measure of the man.

In Hollywood

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Who aside from his late and beloved mother would have expected to find television's Uncle Miltie a contender for an Academy Award nomination?

But as ballots go out this weekend for the annual Oscar sweepstakes, Milton Berle, who played himself in "Let's Make Love" is among candidates for the best supporting actor nomination.

It would be refreshing to see Milton win—if for no other reason than that he promises to give the first honest acceptance speech in Oscar history.

"If I get the Oscar," he promises, "I will say that I thank no one but myself. I did it all, folks."

The critics put Milton in the Oscar race. Bosley Crowther of the New York Times was ecstatic about Berle playing Berle.

Crowther said Berle stole the show without much effort from Marilyn Monroe and Yvec Montand. The Times' writer devoted three-fourths of his review to Milton who only was on screen 11 minutes.

This has been Uncle Miltie's year. NBC-TV put him on "Jackpot Bowling" when it had a miserable rating of .08.

"Other comics thought it a comedown for a star comic to go on a sports show. I didn't. Now it's a combination sports-comedy show."

And the rating is a fat .29.

"I came on 23rd," says Milton. "World War II preceded me on the program."

Milton's irreverence knows no bounds. When President Kennedy showed up at Frank Sinatra's party for the cast of the gala—a good 12 hours or more after the swearing-in, Milton greeted the new President thus:

"And they said your term wouldn't last."

By State of the Union Goals Burdens We Must Bear

WASHINGTON—(NEA)— One view of President Kenedy's first State of the Union message is that if he gets just half of the things he wants, he will be a miracle man.

There are 30 action programs listed in the message. Detailed messages will be sent to Congress on many of them within the next two weeks. This is no 100-day program. It will keep Congress busier than it has been in years, late and long.

Some Of These Programs could cost the government billions. The great, unanswered question is how the President will propose to pay for them under a balanced budget for 1962 and a deficit of only two billion dollars for the current fiscal year ending next June 30, instead of the 100-million-dollar surplus planned by ex-President Eisenhower in his budget message.

To do this, says Kennedy, it will be necessary for Congress to enact "all the revenue measures" already submitted to Congress for 1962 in the Eisenhower budget.

These Measures Include extension of present excise and corporation income tax rates, increase of aviation and highway fuel taxes and higher U.S. postage rates.

Kennedy advocates closing customs and tax loopholes but the President also proposes a tax incentive to business for plant expansion to create jobs. This would be a tax reduction for some concerns.

The President is obviously counting on a higher level of business activity to increase national income and provide more government revenue. But priming the pump to get this new flow of tax receipts started will cost something.

These Are The Kennedy Programs in which the federal costs are bound to increase, no matter how set up:

● Make federal grants for public schools and higher education. (Note that Kennedy specified only "public" schools.)

● Increase hospital, nursing home, other health care facilities and personnel—meaning doctor and nurse training.

● Strengthen U.S. military tools for national defense. This includes more air transport for the Army, more Polaris subs for the Navy, more missiles for the Air Force. Anyone can write his own ticket on that, and the cost could be billions.

● Improve America's foreign aid program on the scale of lend-lease and Marshall Plan operations. They cost about 17 billion dollars apiece, although a few billions came back.

● The 500 million dollars for Latin America is already in the budget. Of U.S. farm income "reduced by 25 per cent since 1951," he must specify later how it would be raised, but it is obvious this isn't going to be done for nothing.

● An expanded food-for-peace program could be a giveaway to put more emphasis on basic research for greater progress and to join with the Soviet Union and other nations in exploration of outer space. The sky's the limit on expense.

The same goes for development of U.S. natural resources.

Some Of The Kennedy Programs will cost the government only minor millions for increased administrative expenses. They include:

Expand the U. S. employment service. Create a new department of housing and urban affairs. Form a National Peace corps. Increase U.S. support for the U.N. Promote U.S. exports. Attract foreign investment and travel to the U. S. Curb organized crime and juvenile delinquency. End the denial of constitutional rights on account of race.

Some Of The Proposals won't cost the government anything, but the tab will be picked up by others:

Increasing the minimum wage will be paid for by private employers. Putting health care for the aged under social security will make the beneficiaries and their employers pay for it. Extending unemployment benefits through federal loans to the states means that the advances will be paid back.

Redevelopment of areas of chronic unemployment won't cost the federal government anything in the long run if the program is done on a loan basis. Stimulation of housing and construction could also be done by loans. But if these two programs are financed by grants, the cost could be millions.

But All These Programs have certain obvious inflationary pressures if they add up to greatly increased government spending.

The great challenge in the Kennedy program is how all these things he recommends can be done while keeping the dollar "sound as a dollar" and encouraging price stability.

That will take a real miracle man.

Be Candid About Your Age In Social Security Matters

BY MARIE DAERR

Knocking a year or two off your age on social security records is a type of fibbing that doesn't pay.

One of the jobs of social security staffers is to help straighten matters out for persons who didn't give their right ages when they applied for cards.

"In the days when social security came into effect, jobs were hard to find and hold, particularly where older people were concerned," a social security official told me. "People would tell us they were younger than they actually were.

"Apparently they thought our records were a sort of national reference library, open to anyone. Actually, they are strictly confidential."

When the time to apply for social security draws near, these people are in a spot. It is up to them to correct the records.

Sometimes, of course, people actually don't know their birth date, or they can't produce birth or baptismal records.

"Maybe they were born in a remote area of the United States, where records weren't kept," the official said. "Sometimes the first record was made when the person arrived from Europe.

"People who were born in Iron Curtain countries are in a difficult spot, when it comes to obtaining birth records."

According to social security officials, the oldest proof is best—a birth certificate. A baptismal certificate comes next.

"If these are absolutely unobtainable, the social security office will look at other records," said the official. "Sometimes a marriage certificate gives the birth date.

"Sometimes age is proved by military service papers or by records of a fraternal organization."

These days, older women who are job-hunting for the first time are less inclined to fabricate on age than were the job-hunters of 20 years ago. Social security staffers say that is the result of more education regarding the social security program.

"They realize our records are secret," I was told. "And they are vitally aware of the importance of social security in their financial picture after retirement."

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy, as part of his bang-bang action to get his new administration moving fast, has taken two steps which will be fine—if they work.

He has set up a task-force to pull together policies and programs on Latin America. And, as he disclosed in his economic message Thursday, he will create a 21-man labor-management group with a broad field to work in.

The task of this latter group, he said, will advise the President on actions that may be taken by: "Labor, management and the public which will promote free and responsible collective bargaining, industrial peace, sound wage policies, sound price policies and stability, a high standard of living, increased productivity, and America's competitive position in world markets."

The government is to be a full partner in all this with Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg and Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges rotating the chairmanship between them yearly.

It sounds good, but the problem lies in getting the labor and management representatives to agree on very much. They've had trouble agreeing in the past. The public will also be represented.

During the presidential campaign Kennedy set up task forces to consider dilemmas facing him if he became president and recommendations to solve them.

One of these was headed by Adolf A. Berle, Jr., a Franklin D. Roosevelt braintruster who served in the government from 1933 to 1948 and is a specialist on Latin America.

Kennedy made public a number of his task forces' reports in other fields. He has not released the one from the Berle group on Latin America, perhaps because of too dismal a picture of conditions there.

Berle will head the new task force, which has these members:

Theodore C. Achilles, counselor of the State Department; Thomas C. Mann, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs; William Bundy, deputy assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs; and Lincoln Gordon, an economic professor at Harvard.

During the campaign Kennedy complained that "dozens of U.S. agencies" are involved in this government's various efforts in the Latin-American field and indicated they needed pulling together, plus new programs.

This is the job for Berle and his group. And, since the State Department is so well represented on it, it would seem it would function under the wing of Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

But this isn't clear. It was learned authoritatively that Berle had been offered and had declined absolute autonomy in handling Latin-American affairs, preferring to have his group under State Department supervision.

But suppose Rusk and the two State Department officials on the panel disagree with Berle's conclusions and proposals. Does he bow to them or go over their heads to Kennedy?

In both cases—creation of the labor-management group and the Berle groups—the idea sounds all right. It's an effort toward orderly thinking and doing.

But the question is: Will they work or foul themselves up?

matter of FACT

Ironically, it was on April Fool's day of 1861 that William H. Seward suggested he relieve the "green" President Abraham Lincoln of his duties. Seward was secretary of state in the Lincoln administration and fancied himself a more qualified leader than the strapping Illinoisan. So he wrote a memo offering to take over the real operation of the government, with Lincoln as figurehead. But Lincoln refused to become a puppet.

FINDING THE WAY

'How?' Is Question Raised

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Written For NEA

Have you ever caught yourself explaining yourself? If it's any comfort, everyone does it. You've been gruff and so you explain your rudeness with, "The pressure of these days is enough to make anyone gruff." You forget an appointment and you explain, "Things have piled up so much that I'm fortunate if I remember my own name."

This is only the minor part of the problem. The real difficulties arise when we try to explain our moral delinquencies in the same manner.

Let a person start explaining his alcoholism, or the family rift, or the loss of concern for wastage of time and talent, and it usually adds up to the monotonous recital of a person's attempt to explain irresponsibility.

We live in a time when we've learned much concerning the circumstances which can influence a man's personality. Yet when a person shrugs off responsibility he misuses and abuses that which we have learned concerning environmental or inherited tendencies.

It is an ancient truth that the father's sins have set the children's teeth on edge.

It is just as ancient a truth that a man is morally responsible. There's nothing to gain and everything to lose in sloughing it off with the excuse that a childhood was unhappy or there were certain fancied hurts.

This bit of verse is not epic poetry, but it has the ring of the familiar:

"The college professor says,
'Such rawness in a student is a shame
But the high school preparation is to blame.'"
"The high school teacher remarks,
'From such youth I should be spared
They send them up so unprepared.'"
"The elementary teacher observes,
"A cover for the dunce's stool.
Why was he ever sent to school?"
"The kindergarten teacher whispers,
'Never such lack of training did I see,
What kind of person must his mother be?'"
"And the mother replies,
'Poor child, he's not to blame,
His father's folks were just the same.'"

When we shrug off deficiencies instead of confronting them, we have taken the first step toward the loss of our right to live as free men. Should this present tenuous peace ever break down into a hot war, a stringent discipline would be demanded of all of us.

It was the faith of our founding fathers that we might be people who could develop inner constraints which would enable us to live as free men with a minimum of external restraints—and that we could have this inner constraint in any circumstances.

It is inherent in our religious faith that we shall have to bear our neighbor's burdens; but first a man must bear his own burdens. For in bearing his neighbor's burdens, he discovers the need of a redemptive love that can sustain him.

Experts Defend White Bread

GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Many Americans insist only whole wheat bread is nutritious. Others, particularly those of foreign extractions, cling to the nostalgic belief that the breads of the old country are superior to ours.

However, nutrition scientists and biochemists state that our baker's enriched white bread compares favorably in nutritional value with the breads of the world.

Recently, research scientists at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology compared breads from all countries to determine which had greater nutritional value. They took 40 samples of typical breads from 14 countries and studied them by chemical, microbiologic and fluorometric methods. As reported in the Journal of The American Dietetic Association, these breads showed considerable variation in nutritional content. Those highest were: (a) a semi-white milk bread from Finland, (b) enriched white bread from the United States.

According to type of bread, the enriched white breads which complied with the United States enrichment standards ranked highest in overall nutrient content, rye bread second, semi-white breads third and fourth, mixed wheat and rye bread fifth, and unenriched white bread lowest.

In other words, our U.S. enrichment formula raises white bread from lowest rating so that it now compares favorably with the breads of the world, including whole wheat. Eighty per cent of the white bread sold in your grocery and bakery today is enriched.

As good as enriched white bread is, it could be even better, according to Fredrick P. Stare, M.D., Ph.D., chairman, Department of Nutrition, Harvard University.

"American bakers should not be content to rest on their laurels. In the past few years we have learned how to increase the protein quality of our bread by the addition of lysine, an essential amino acid," he explained. "Today, the price of lysine, has dropped so much that it would cost very little extra to add it to our enrichment formula. Three large competing pharmaceutical companies are producing it. So are the Japanese, who are underselling us. So let's make our good baker's enriched white bread an even more valuable food," he urged.

Illinois Farmers Outlook Letter

CATTLE ON FEED UP SIX PERCENT

The report of cattle on feed January 1 provided reassuring news for cattle feeders. It showed that prospective market supplies of fed cattle are only moderately larger than they were a year ago.

Six percent is the key figure. The total number of cattle on feed in the United States was up 6 percent from a year ago. Farmers in the north-central states were feeding 6 percent more cattle. Illinois farmers were feeding 6 percent more. And reports from the farmers indicated that they would market around 6 percent more fed cattle in January-February-March than they marketed in the same quarter last year. This increase is moderate, especially when compared with the increase in population, which is nearly 2 percent a year.

Stronger Demand Seen

Consumer demand for beef should be stronger in the next 90 days than it was a year ago. Business is not exactly booming, but consumer income recently was about as large as it was a year before. Supplies of pork, the principal competitor of beef, are expeced to be a little smaller than they were last year. The actual reduction seems likely to be 6 to 8 percent. Supplies of broiler meat, the second ranking competitor of beef, may be 5 to 10 percent larger. But this increase will not offset the cut in pork supplies, because the output of broiler meat is only about half as large as the production of pork.

This supply-demand situation should hold prices near present levels for 60 to 90 days. Prices in the first quarter may about equal those of last year, when choice steers at Chicago averaged slightly above $27.00 a hundred pounds.

Lower Than 1960?

Prices for the three later quarters of this year seem likely to average 5 to 10 percent lower than in 1960. There are several reasons:

1. Market supplies of fed cattle will probably be moderately larger than in 1960.

2. Marketing of grass cattle are expected to increase considerably over last year, probably by 6 to 8 percent.

3. By April or May the slaughter of hogs is expected to begin to run larger than a year before. The number of pigs saved in September, October and November was 7 percent larger. And the December government pig-crop report indicated that the number of pigs saved in the three winter months would be around 9 percent larger.

4. The broiler producers are continuing to expand production. Eggs set now will make chicken in the skillet in 90 days.

5. Finally, while business activity might turn up in the second quarter, advances may be slow. Steak is a luxury that most Americans can afford, at least occasionally, but sales are sensitive to changes in profits and employment.

Even if prices for fed cattle average lower in 1961 than in 1960, they will be relatively high compared with prices of most other farm products. If some cattle feeders are pinched, it will be because they paid too much for their replacement cattle. Recent prices for stockers and feeders were about as high as they were a year earlier.

14 Hungry Ones Say:

What Care We For The Ice And Snow?

Thursday's snow storm bothered most everyone, but these 14 husky pigs couldn't have cared less.

A moment before this picture was made, Mama grunted, "Lunch time."

Her speckled progeny had been dozing on clean concrete warmed by "radiant heat,"—that is, by a hot water pipe buried in the floor just below them. Their house is dry, cool and free from drafts. Mama is confined in her stall most of the time—just taken out for exercise twice a day—and can't possible get so absent minded as to slump her massive carcass one one of her youngsters.

To make life as perfect as it can get, the pigs can go to a self-feeder any time they wish to nibble away at a balanced ration that is sweetened with molasses just enough to coax the appetite of any young one. And next to it, there's a fountain of clear, cool water.

This pig Mecca will be the first stop on a "Swine Building Tour" which has been arranged by the Morgan County Extension livestock committee, headed by Marvin Martin of Alexander. It's a part of a large confined farrowing, feeding and finishing setup at the Jackson Feed Mills Proving Station, located four miles east and a half-mile north of Murrayville. Everybody interested is invited to meet there at 12:30 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 15.

University of Illinois animal scientists advise farmers to begin feeding grain to ewes the last four to six weeks before lambing. That's because ewes cannot use as much roughage then, and grain helps to prevent pregnancy disease.

4-H Tractor School Opens Here Feb. 14

Bob Hayward, Jr., assistant farm adviser, announces the annual 4-H tractor maintenance and safety school will begin Tuesday, Feb. 14, at the Baumann & Son showroom and shop on East Morgan street.

The school will run for five consecutive Tuesday nights, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The beginning unit will be taught by Richard DeOrnellas, North Ag club leader, and Howard Bryant of the Franklin Straight Shooters.

The advanced class will be led by H. E. Hembrough of the East Side Juniors and James Fox, Lynnville Hustlers.

Class C, which deals with keeping accurate records, and Class D, farm machinery maintenance, will be directed by Edwin Clayton of the Nortonville Ag club and Robert Middleton, Jr., Lynnville Hustlers.

Other instructors include Wayne and Keith Baumann and their shop mechanics and James Carter and Edwin Middendorf of Standard Oil.

The school will close with a family night program on March 14.

"All interested boys 13 to 14 years old, and older, are invited to enroll in the school," Hayward says. "All who complete the course must compete in the safety driving contest to be held during the county fair next August."

The winner of the county contest, if he is 14 years old or older, will be eligible to enter the state contest, which will be held at the Illinois State Fair.

U.I. May Teach Plant Disease Course Here

The U. I. College of Agriculture announces it will offer an extramural course in Jacksonville this spring.

The course will be Plant Pathology 377, Diseases of Field Crops. The class will meet each Saturday morning at Jacksonville high school and the instructor will be Michael Britton of Urbana.

Other extramural courses will be offered in Benton, Pekin, Edwardsville and Springfield.

At least 15 persons must register for the course and a nominal fee will be charged. Persons taking the course can receive undergraduate or graduate credit.

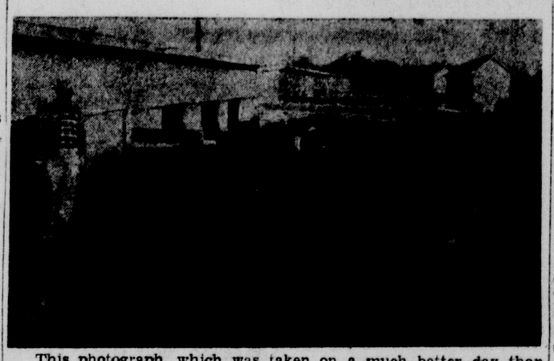
Before registering, however, prospective students should make sure they have the necessary prerequisites. They can learn this and secure other information by writing to Associate Dean Karl E. Gardner, 104 Mumford Hall, University of Illinois, Urbana.

2 Charlois Bulls For Jersey Herd

JERSEYVILLE — The Charlois cattle herd of Walter Beierman, rural route 1, Jerseyville, has been improved recently by the addition of two registered bulls.

Beierman purchased the two pure bred animals from the Fred Turner estate at Westlaco, Texas. The bulls are two years old and will average better than 1,800 pounds.

Beierman has been experimenting for several years with the Charlois cattle, a breed that originated in France and one noted for its rapid and extra large growth as beef cattle. Beierman has been experiencing good results with the breed and is enthusiastic regarding the future of the Charlois animals in the Illinois field of beef production.



This photograph, which was taken on a much better day than Thursday last, shows LeRoy Jackson and a part of his pork producing plant, which has a capacity of 4,000 finished hogs per year.

The hogs bunk in draft-free houses at left. The floors can be heated by hot water in cold weather, but thusfar this has not been necessary. Their animal heat is enough to keep their resting quarters comfortable.

In real hot weather high pressure nozzles spray cold water to lower the temperature.

The second stop on the tour will be at the Alan Heaton farm a mile east and a mile and a half south of Murrayville. There 500 to 600 hogs are raised each year in a very successful operation that uses a central farrowing house, with feeding and finishing on small pastured lots.

Don Jedele, U. I. farm structures specialist, and Harry Russell of the College of Agriculture animal science department will accompany the tour and they will lead a discussion of current ideas on buildings for swine and to answer questions at the third stop, which will be for doughnuts and coffee at the Murrayville Legion building.

"Farmers attending will see two successful, but quite different, methods of raising hogs," says Farm Adviser George Trull. "Everyone interested is most cordially invited to join the tour."

Meeting Thursday For 4-H Leaders

The program will begin at 9:30 a.m. at Farm Bureau hall. The theme will be "What Is An American?" and a new 4-H program dealing with citizenship will be introduced by Hugh Wetzel and Alice Hare, extension 4-H specialist.

Leaders from Macoupin, Sangamon, Greene, Scott, Pike, Adams, Cass, Schuyler, Brown and Morgan counties will attend the conference.

GROWING PAINS!

U.S. population totals 175.9 million people. Up 18.5% over the 1950 count. 85 million Americans live in metropolitan areas having a population of a million or more.

FARMS TOO!

Corn Belt states including Illinois, have seen a 11% reduction in numbers of farms, an increase of 12% in acreage per farm and a decrease of 17% of farm operators living on farms in the same period.

In these same states, 43% of the operators living on farms also had off the farm jobs last year.

Two transport drivers were taking a cargo into Canada for the first time. Late in the evening they stopped at a large town, parked their truck and entered a roadside diner. A very cute little waitress approached.

"Saskatoon, Saskatchewan," sang out the waitress.

The driver turned to his companion and whispered:

Trees Sometimes Best Crop For Bottomlands

DES MOINES—Growing hardwood trees on bottomland that is seasonally flooded can be a most profitable land use, suggests Dr. Leon Minckler of the U. S. Forest Service.

How to make the best use of overflow bottomland sites has always been a problem. The soils on these sites are usually fertile but often flooding, poor drainage, or both make farming uncertain and expensive. Even so, the present trend is toward clearing more bottomland for agricultural production.

In an article appearing in the current issue of the Journal of Soil and Water Conservation, Minckler states, "Owners of bottomland that floods seasonally should seriously consider growing timber on it so as to take advantage of the remarkable tree growth possible on such sites." Owners are frequently surprised at the amount of profit that can be derived from such land use.

The five basic steps bottomland forest owners need to make their forests productive are outlined by Minckler as:

1. Protection of the woods from fire and grazing.

2. Appraisal of tree species already located on the site.

3. A thorough study of timber marketing and economics must be made to determine which products can be sold from the site and at what price.

4. Correctly marketing the timber for harvesting and elimination of undesirable trees.

5. Management of the forest for maximum production of high quality products, continuous establishment of desirable trees, soil stability and provision for good wildlife habitat.

Navy Test Pilot

By Walter B. Hendrickson Jr.

Like all the seven Project Mercury Astronauts, Lt. Comm. Alan Bartlett Shepard, Jr., served as a military test pilot before being selected as an Astronaut. Shepard did his test piloting in the Navy at Patuxent River, Maryland.

Shepard helped develop the Navy's in-flight refueling system. This system permits jets to be refueled by other specially equipped jets while in the air so that they don't have to return to the carrier so often.

Navy trials of the first angled carrier deck, similar to those used on the super-carriers Forestal and Saratoga, were participated in by Shepard. He also took part in the carrier suitability trials of the F2H3 Banshee jet.

Shepard's service at Patuxent was interrupted when the United States entered the Korean War in 1950. Shepard was assigned to Fighter Squadron 193 at Moffett Field, California, as operations officer.

Fighter Squadron 193 was a night flying unit using Banshee jets. During the Korean War Shepard made two tours with this group in the Western Pacific aboard the carrier Oriskany.

After the war ended in 1953 Shepard returned to Patuxent River, Maryland. At that base he tested the F3H Demon, F8U Crusader, F4D Skyray and F11F Tigercat jets. Shepard was project test pilot on the F5D Skulancer jet. Shepard's last assignment at Patuxent was as an instructor in the test pilot school for five months.

Shepard then entered the Naval War College in Newport, Rhode Island. After graduating in 1958 he joined the staff of the commander-in-chief, Atlantic Fleet as aircraft readiness officer.

By the time Shepard was chosen to be one of the seven Project Mercury astronauts, he had flown a total of 3,600 hours in 1,700 jets.

Bumbles Make Trouble

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

Part 2:

Surprise on surprise! The bird bath was rimmed with a teetering row of thirsty bees, nor did one threaten her as she alighted. Only sipping water a moment, then circling off to their gourd home, except one brother Bumble who slid headfirst into the water, then thrashed his six legs about until he could climb with wet foot prints up the bird bath edge to test his dampened wings a moment.

"I won't hurt you," he assured Mrs. Wren, "We fight if anything threatens our house, but we share water peacefully," and turning about, he quickly glided away.

One morning the house man rolled a lawnmower across and across the thick grass. It was almost too tall to cut under the Forsithia bush so he halted a moment then with a great shove banged it far under the sweeping branches.

Zoom, zoom, zoom! bees winged about his head pushing into their greenery and a strange machine jarring their castle. The house man raced across a porch then around house corners, five stings on his face and more warriors whipping about his shoulders.

He dodged under a tangle of low peach limbs and hastened indoors to find cool water and a wet towel.

"Where do those bees live?" he wondered, but not until his face was more comfortable did he go to a window to watch. There, they were still quarreling with the lawnmower and angerly guarding their gourd.

"They cannot live there," he thought, "I am still afraid to move my lawnmower too."

Closes The Castle

One night he took a heavy sack and wrapped it snugly to seal the castle's doorway, then swiftly he moved the bundle to his smoulder-ing trashpile and broke it open with a heavy pole. Honey, eggs, bees confused by the bonfires smoke and broken gourd fragments, oozed out.

By morning, the Bumbles knew they must find a new home. Still it must be a castle, no roof crannies nor a hole in the ground.

Mrs. Bumbles searched until, discouraged and tired, she rested beneath a Wistaria vine. What was that in front of her eyes? A grayed brick wall with a mortared groove opening into a doorway.

She climbed up to venture within; there opened a great cool room, stoutly walled. Here was no tower certainly but this made a safe and strong fortress, a refuge beneath a well built porch. In moved the Bumbles.

The house man too saw the bees moving steadily in and out.

"I cannot get at them," he said," but I do not need to go close to that wall. Now I shall move my lawnmower and next Spring I'll hang a new gourd house in the Forsithia, then our wrens will come back."

Let's Go Birding—

Bald Eagles At Chatauqua

By Emma Mae Leonhard

Part 2: Mysterious Bird

The farther we proceeded on the great stretch of ice, the more confident we became; but for some time the mysterious white bird seemed as far away as ever.

We pushed against the wind and moved on more quickly, watching for treacherous places in the ice. That watching was our mistake, for we discovered that the white bird had disappeared when we again measured the ice with our gaze. One of the members had seen it move, and then it was gone.

We searched the ice in vain for it. Could the white bird have been a Snowy Owl, a mere phantom, or just a gull? We shall never know.

However, we continued our hike on the ice. As we approached the 28 Bald Eagles, we were compensated for the battle with the wind and the ice.

There some of them sat in dignity and repose, the heads and tails of the mature ones gleaming white against the gray ice and the dark mass of ducks. The edges of their feathers caught the sunlight and rippled with yellow gold; their great curved beaks reflected a corn-yellow color.

One lone Eagle, here and there, was soaring, monarch of the ice field and all on it. A few other Eagles—some of them immature—were flying low, their great wings beating rhythmically.

Wings For Brakes

Occasionally a great bird came in gracefully for a landing, spreading its tail and wing feathers as brakes. One great monarch sat far out on the ice. Was he on guard? He remained there as long as we were present—the most impressive Eagle of all the twenty-eight.

Not tired of eagles but hungry, we retraced our steps over the ice. We were satisfied and partially relieved of the fear that had been nagging us since we had read in the January, 1961, NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC the following words: "that magnificent but fast-disappearing bird of prey, the American bald eagle."

It had further stated that the National Aubudon Society and the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service had reported that the number of Bald Eagles in North America stands far below what it was a century and more ago and that probably there are fewer than 500 pairs here, outside of Alaska and Canada.

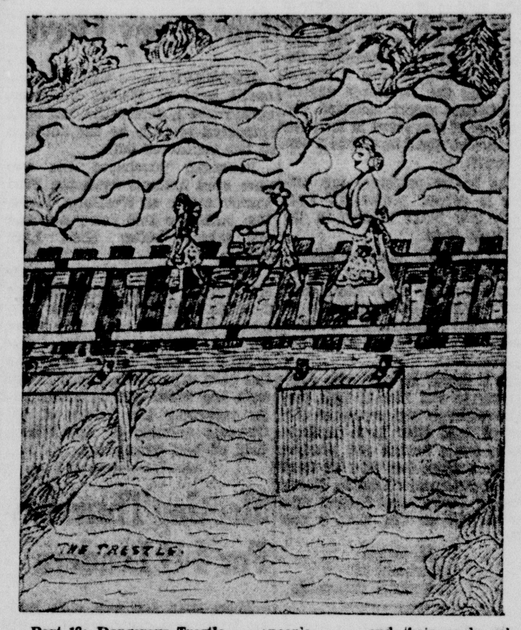
This sight of 28 Bald Eagles before us also recalled to us a statement that had appeared in "Nature Bulletin No. 622," December 17, 1960, published by the Forest Preserve, District of Cook County. Here we read the good news that the Bald Eagle is the only bird of prey which has increased in Illinois. We must not, however, become overconfident and negligent of our protection of the Bald Eagle, the American Eagle adopted by Congress in 1782 as the Nation's official sign.

Jimmy Brown of the Cleveland Browns won the National Football League ball carrying title for the fourth straight season. He averaged 5.8 yards for 215 attempts.

True Story—

Long-Ago School Girl

By Mary Pence Claywell



Part 18: Dangerous Trestle

The other way, was to cross a long rail road trestle . . . and Hannah liked this way best of all, although it was certainly much more dangerous than the others.

I'm sorry to tell you, but Hannah was a bit adventurous for a girl, and she liked a tight spot. But she was always sure of a way out, and there was no way out . . . if a train caught you on the long trestle!

So Hannah and the other children dared not cross it unless they stopped at the home of Good Ruth and asked her to see them safe-over it: (Even then, it was far from safe, and we hope you children are more sensible than ever to walk on a trestle.)

Good Ruth was the Mother of little Hannah's best friends, Bess and Mazie. (Of course, the names in our stories are just picked at random, but all our characters were real people . . . and their early school days are just as real indeed.)

So Good Ruth took her own children and Hannah and the others across the dangerous trestle at the same time.

But Good Ruth richly deserves the adjective I have attached to her own dear name (which was also a Bible name) and she always knew the exact time the fast trains would be coming down the grade from between the hills and high walled rocky banks which hid them from view of the trestle . . . until it would have been too late, had one suddenly come upon the children!

Just before they started across, Ruth would strain her ears for the distant whistle of a "special" but she knew the exact time schedule of all others . . . both passenger and freight.

Good Ruth led the little ones, andh the other children hurried along close to her, feeling a little fearful as they gimpsed the swift, muddy stream through the wide cracks between the rail road ties they so carefully stepped . . . for a child's foot could easily slip through between them and one could be hurt . . . to say nothing of the shock of it!

TRAINED THEN RODE

NEW YORK (AP)—Many thoroughbred trainers were jockeys but Larry Larkin made the grade the other way around. He began as a jockey in 1957 but that hardly counts because Larkin failed to ride a winner. Then he went into training. When Willie Molter died, Larkin saddled T. V. Lark to win the Tropicana Stakes at Bay Meadows last April. Two months later Larkin returned to the races as a rider and won his first victory at Lansdowne Park in Canada.

SCORE STILL 53-0

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)— Drake University football coach Bus Mertes tells of this incident which occurred last year when he was coaching a losing Kansas State team:

"After Iowa had beaten us 53 to 0, I came home and my son Mike said, 'Dad, you ain't much of a coach, are you?'

"Then and there I decided to put my foot down. I said, 'Mike, don't ever let me hear you say ain't again.'"

We don't all like any one make of car; one looks over the field and makes his own personal choice from among the many types available each of which has its own advantages and disadvantages.

Easy To Assemble

In the low priced field of Regenerative Receivers, a good example might be the Knight-Kit "Space Spanner." It is relatively easy to assemble for anyone.

To boost its performance, an external Radio Frequency amplifier (using say a 6AK5, 6BA6, or 6SK7 type tube) might be home-built; added ahead of the antenna terminal of the little receiver, the incoming signals would be appreciably boosted. Thus one could reach out further and hear more stations.

The antenna should be a good one and a good external ground should be used. Even a 125 foot length of copper coated fence wire will make an acceptable antenna.

The ground should be via two or more 6 foot long pipes driven in usually damp or moist earth; the ground lead-in wire should be only as long as absolutely necessary. Of course, a lightning arrester should be used with any receiving (or transmitting for that matter) antenna.

Lower Priced Kits

What of the lower priced communications receiver kits? The author can speak from experience of the Heathkit AR-3 model superhetrodyne receiver.

It can be readily assembled by even a younger teenager. Once assembled and "De-bugged," you can "Soup It Up" by adding an external R.F. pre-amplifier, and by adding either a "Q-Multiplier" or BC-453/B low frequency army surplus receiver after it; either will considerably sharpen up the selectivity of the little receiver.

An idea might be borrowed from the March issue of "QST" Amateur Radio Magazine for adding a "Poor Man's Q-Mutiplier" to sharpen up this receiver quite inexpensively.

This receiver can use almost any type of antenna; end-fed single wire, center-fed dipole, off-center-fed dipole, vertical (this is not preferred since it tends to be worse in picking up local noises), etc. A good, effective ground is needed too. When completed the receiver should be tuned up by a professional repairman.

Game For Indoor Fun

By Joseph A. Smith

Got A Bean, Bag?

Are you a dyed in the wool bean bag player? If you have two or three bean bags somewhere around the house, then why not try these games for fun.

Round up a large shoe box and a square piece of heavy cardboard somewhat larger than one end of the shoe box. Now, whoever is artistic in skill should draw a picture of a monkey head, with crayon or colored ink or pencil, on one side of the piece of cardboard with a mouth large enough for the small bean bags to pass through on an accurate toss from an agreed upon distance.

Now cut out the mouth with scissors, glue the cardboard on one of the box ends, and cut the same hole in this end of the shoe box.

Now, place the box on a chair in the center of a room or near the wall; with the face in front of you, stand back some distance and toss the bean bag at the monkey's mouth. Each successful try counts 5 points. Our total game might be 50 points.

When you are good at this way of tossing, try with the opposite hand. Try throwing from a sitting (rather than from standing) position, or try turning opposite in direction and throwing at it between your legs! I'll bet there won't be many experts at it from this way of doing it.

This May Be Messy

Here's a somewhat messy game that is fine for a boys' party sometime out-of-doors, and it really tests your tossing and catching ability.

Let's assume that we're not too fancily dressed, and that we are outside as we said. Now let's further assume that we have 10 persons in our group.

Ahead of time round up 4 hard boiled eggs and 1 raw one. Now give all five gingerly to your leader, line five boys up facing each other in two straight lines.

Without knowing which is the raw egg, have your leader give an egg to each boy on one side and tell him to hold it in this right hand until told otherwise. Upon a given signal, each boy hands his egg to his opposite player in the second line facing him, and takes one step backward. This person then tosses his egg at the signal back to his opposite partner, who must again catch it.

The tosser then takes one step backward. This continues until someone unfortunately drops or misses the raw egg; then listen to the laughter and howls.

The short course opens tomorrow and will close March 17.

Johnson, a 1960 graduate of Routt High school, will study agronomy, soils, animal husbandry and equipment maintenance. He received one of the three scholarships offered by the Elliott State bank to young farmers desiring to attend the short course. Johnson was the only applicant this year.

Garlich, farm manager of the bank, said as he presented the check, "We are not entirely unselfish in offering this help. Farmers need all the technical assistance they can get, and what you learn will pay off in the future, both to you and the community."

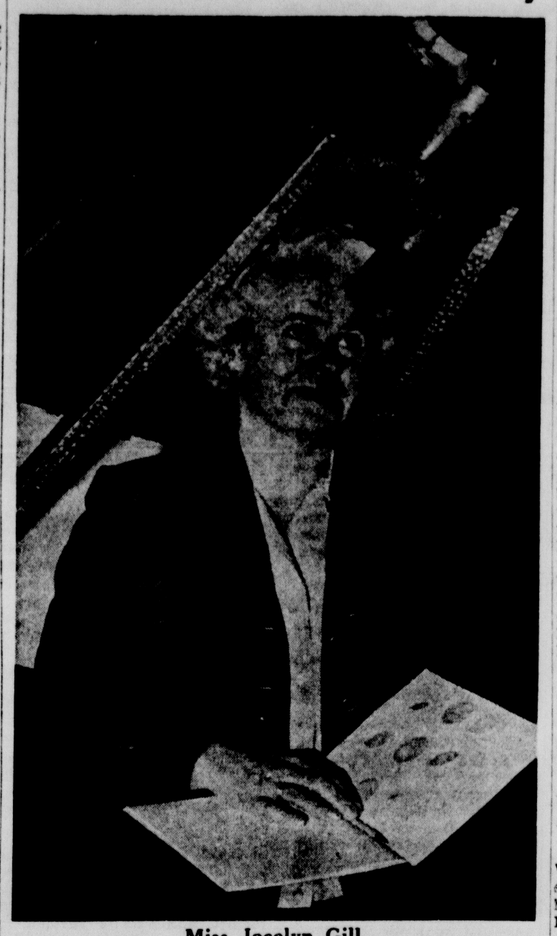
Wellesley A Tradition In Winchester Family



Miss Jocelyn Gill

Wellesley College in Wellesley, Mass., has long been a tradition with the Walmsley family of Winchester, and this year a member of the family has become the first Wellesley faculty member to be a granddaughter of a former teacher at the college.

Miss Jocelyn Gill, whose mother was Sarah Walmsley Gill, is a lecturer in astronomy at Wellesley. Miss Gill is a second generation alumna of the women's college but her family connections with Wellesley go back even another generation, to 1877—only two years after the college was opened—when her grandmother, then Mary Olive Marston, became a teacher of Greek and geometry, a position she held for two years.

Mary Marston was married to H B. Walmsley and in time sent her three daughters to Wellesley. In addition to the late Mrs. Gill, who was a member of the class of 1914, her daughters are Miss Alice F. Walmsley, class of 1906, and Miss Evelyn M. Walmsley, class of 1908. They both reside at 307 East Jefferson street, Winchester.

Mayor's Wife Is Graduate

Another member of the Jefferson street household is another Wellesley graduate, Mrs. Horace M. Walmsley whose husband has served for many years as the mayor of Winchester. Mrs. Walmsley, the former Mary Lou Frost whose family ties lie deep in Winchester history, is married to the brother of her college roommate, who was Mrs. Gill.

Returning to the present generation, Miss Gill received her Wellesley degree in 1938, with a major in mathematics. She did graduate work at the University of Chicago and the Yerkes Observatory, in astronomy and astrophysics, receiving the master's degree in 1941. She then continued her formal education at Yale University, where she was awarded the Ph.D. in astronomy in 1959.

A specialist in celestial mechanics, particularly in the field of satellite motion, Miss Gill is a research associate at the Yale Observatory in addition to teaching at Wellesley.

Research she is currently conducting at Yale involves using an "electronic brain" to analyze nearly 4,000 observations made since 1860 of the orbit of the planet Neptune's satellite, Triton. Analyses of Triton have not been brought up-to-date since 1929.

Miss Gill Does Research

Before taking her current posts, Miss Gill worked on wave propagation research at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, taught at Mount Holyoke and Smith Colleges in Massachusetts, and last year was on the faculty of Arizona State College in Flagstaff. She has written scholarly papers for the Astrophysical Journal and M.I.T. publications, and has contributed monthly columns on astronomy for the layman to the Springfield, Mass., Republican and the Arizona Daily Sun in Flagstaff.

Miss Gill is a member of the American Astronomical Society, the Nantucket (Mass.) Maria Mitchell Association, and Sigma Xi, the national scientific honor society. She formerly served on the executive council of the American Association of Variable Star Observers.

Her father is Thomas B. Gill of Maywood, also a mathematician and astronomer.

Discussion Wednesday: Morgan's Soil Types, How To Handle Them

"Everyone who will be farming Morgan County land in 1961 should be interested in this meeting," Trull says.

The program was planned by the Soils and Crops committee of the Morgan County Agricultural Extension Council, which is headed by Robert Burrus of Arenzville.

Gholson will present information about the main soil types in the county, their potential, and suggested rotations and management for each. Each person attending will receive a leaflet describing in some detail the various soil types in the county, what they can produce under favorable conditions, and how they should be handled for best results.

Special attention will be paid to four of the most prevalent soil types found in the county: Ipava and Illiopolis, prairie soils, Sawmill and Bogota, timber soils.

The farm adviser also will tell of the progress made in soil testing and everyone interested will have the opportunity to visit and inspect the local soil testing laboratory.

Gholson will conclude the program with a discussion of special interest to some land owners: "Controlling Giant Foxtail and Johnson Grass."

The seed dealers of the county will contribute several door prizes to be distributed at the close of the program.

Laotians, Westerners Believe Laos' Future Depends On U.S.

VIENTIANE (AP)—The future of Laos, both Laotians and Westerners here agree, depends on the United States.

It is generally accepted that the Soviet Union and Laos' Communist neighbors, Red China and North Viet Nam, will continue to block, hamper and threaten the U. S. role here. But they're not expected to move overtly and the decision between peace, war, or whatever can be fashioned in between, rests on the United States.

For Laos is easily one of the world's most dependent countries, dependent almost entirely on the United States.

"Laos is not even a country," a leading Lao said. "It exists only because of the United States and because of U. S. aid and support."

Since 1954 when the Geneva agreement ended the Indochina war, the United States has poured $310 million into Laos, 85 per cent of it for the Laotian army, the police force and financial support of the Laotian civil budget.

The army is equipped, trained, paid and even fed by the United States. Uncle Sam covers 85 per cent of the costs of the police force and contributes $5 million annually to the support of the civil budget.

Laos earns only a tiny fraction of its own expenses. Its exports totaled $1.6 million in 1960. Its national deficit was $33 million, or about 20 times its export figure. U. S. aid, including military hardware, totalled 32 million.

Tin used to rank higher than words on the export list but French operators closed down their mines recently. Lumber and opium are farther down the list.

In the old colonial days the French used Laos mainly as a hunting preserve. The United States, which considers Laos as the cockpit of Southeast Asia, takes the country more seriously. The United States entered Laos militarily on the shirttails of France which still technically has over-all supervision of military training here.

The French had few resources to spare for training Laotians and the United States took on more and more of the job.

The Laotian government currently is reported pressing the French to give up their biggest military base in Laos and the French government is reported considering the request.

The United States, concerned over a growing Communist threat to this strategically situated kingdom in the heart of Southeast Asia, has committed itself deeply in Laos.

Because of spreading civil war the economic scope of U. S. aid is shrinking. But the United States maintains a 162-man task force of "military men in mufti" attached to the Program Evaluation Office (PEO) under the U. S. Operations Mission (USOM).

These men, dressed usually in slacks and short shirts, are all either temporarily detached or retired from the U. S. armed forces.

They train Lao soldiers in the use and maintenance of American weapons. Under the Geneva agreement they cannot teach military tactics. They are in mufti because the Geneva agreement bars U. S. forces here.

The role of the PEO men in Laos is touchy.

The Communists denounce them as American aggressors. Britain and France, who prefer a more neutral Western approach to a Laotian solution, have reportedly expressed fears the PEO may be overstepping the bounds of the Geneva agreement.

U. S. officials here deny this heatedly. But the charge seems generally accepted by other nationals.

Sixty-six PEO men are stationed in Vientiane. The others are scattered in eight field teams around the country.

Caught in the ebb and flow of the swirling civil war and with the Laotians leaning as heavily as they do on the Americans, the line between friendly and internationally legal advice would be hard to define.

The Central Intelligence Agency maintains operatives here, too, but as with all intelligence operations their number, activities and degree of influence are clouded in secrecy.

Their main job is the collection of intelligence. Their critics charge they also try to influence policy.

Another delicate aspect of the U. S. role in Laos is the amount of American military equipment that has fallen into the hands of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels, who have been harassing the government for the better part of a decade.

Until recently most of the military equipment in rebel hands was American made, much of it captured by pro-Communist forces in neighboring North Viet Nam during the Indochina war.

ing artillery and other arms and ammunition to Kong Le in mid-

The Soviet Union started airlift-December. These weapons bore Soviet, Chinese Communist and American markings and apparently included American weapons captured in North Viet Nam too.

Santa Maria's Captain Tells Of Rebel Coup

Editor's Note—What happened that night in the Caribbean when the liner Santa Maria was seized by Portuguese rebels? Here is the story as told by the ship's captain to Morris W. Rosenberg of The Associated Press staff at Recife.

By CAPT. MARIO SIMOES MAIA

RECIFE, Brazil (AP)—At approximately 1:30 a. m. on Jan. 22, a freightened sailor of my ship came running to my cabin to report that some passengers were taking hostile action on the bridge.

He said they had apparently seriously wounded the third officer, who was the pilot on the bridge at the time, and an apprentice officer with him.

When I heard this news I first concluded in principle that it was perhaps a matter of a passenger having gone mad, because such incidents have occurred now and then among passengers—or perhaps there were disorders among passengers who had too much alcohol.

I went up toward the bridge. When my eyes reached the level of the bridge floor I saw a man standing in the door across the bridge aiming a machine gun at me.

I quickly dropped down the steps and ran into my cabin. Locking the door and cutting off the lights, I called the engine room to halt the engines.

I started to leave by a side door of my cabin when I saw through the glass door an officer lying on the deck covered with blood. I thought he was dead until I noticed a leg moving.

When I started out the door to try to pull him into the cabin, I saw a man aiming a rifle at me. I locked myself in the cabin and in the dark, by counting the holes of my telephone, tried to telephone the crew to have them armed with bars or anything for weapons.

None answered in the crew rooms because at that time they all were lying on the decks with guns pointed at their heads.

In all, one officer was killed and three wounded—one with a shot in the back, two with shots in the lungs.

In my cabin at the time, after failing to get through a telephone call, I overheard on the communication system someone trying to call another point on the ship.

"Who is talking there?" I asked. A voice responded:

"Who is calling?"

"This is the commander."

"Ah, senhor commander, this is the doctor of the Portuguese Immigration Service speaking. I am badly wounded. Galvao (Portuguese exile Henrique Galvao) and his followers have taken over the boat."

I tried again to telephone the bridge to see if anyone would answer. A strange voice, with an authoritative air, replied:

"This is Capt. Galvao, who in the name of Gen. Humberto Delgado has just taken your ship by assault. You must not try any kind of resistance because it will be violently repressed. Surrender will bring you benefits."

I replied I could surrender only after meeting with my officers and principal members of the crew. This was arranged. We came to the sad reality that there was nothing we could do.

We were cut off and, only because of the force of arms, we submitted to Galvao.

I told him we were surrendering because the crew was unarmed and vital points of the ship had been captured by him and we thought this was the best way to defend the lives of the passengers and the ship itself.

We declared we would continue to work only under the force of guns. That is the way we worked until yesterday.

Any movement of ours was watched by armed men at all times.

I went to the bridge a few times near the coast of Brazil. Each time I heard guns being cocked. We were under that kind of situation until the ship anchored in the harbor.

Once in here under the protection of Brazilian authorities I told Capt. Galvao that all officers and crew had reached a decision: since the ship was now in a Brazilian port, we would all prefer to die together than sail out again with him and his men.

We had already had noisy demonstrations among the passengers near Recife protesting the situation.

The decision of the ship's crew disoriented Galvao's force completely. Although they wanted to use force against the crew they did not because Brazilian authorities, including the captain of the port and Adm. Dias Fernandes himself were aboard.

Galvao himself thought about disembarking all passengers and members of the crew who were not necessary to the operation of the ship, and leaving aboard the technicians necessary for moving the ship in hopes it could leave the harbor again.

But we maintained the firm decision that everybody aboard would disembark or die.

Thanks to the conversations of the two admirals (Brazilian and U.S. Rear Adm. Allen E. Smith) Galvao had to face the evidence of facts and permit total disembarkation.

I admire and am profoundly grateful to the passengers. They declared—the Americans in particular—that they would not disembark from the ship if the crew did not also disembark.

I also want to thank, from the bottom of my heart, the U.S. Navy for everything they did for us.

During the time of the ship's seizure we tried various ways to force them to dock in any port because of the poor control of the ship.

I had as little contact as possible with Galvao. We would exchange good mornings, and that was all. All work was forced at the point of a gun. I and my chief officer lived with machine guns outside our doors. I ate in my cabin.

We could never count with certainty the number of Galvao's followers aboard. Galvao claimed about 100 but we could only count about 60, including five members of the crew—four men and a 15-year-old boy. The rest of the crew maintained a loyalty which I have rarely had the privilege of seeing.

There were 16-20 Portuguese among Galvao's men. The rest were Spaniards, Venezuelans and Cubans. Some had recently come from Russia, having been trained in Russian brigades. They had been in Cuba with Fidel Castro.

If all had been Portuguese this could vaguely be considered a political matter. But the majority were not Portuguese. This was an authentic case of piracy.

Capt. Galvao has declared that the attitude of the crew was cowardly. I declare that he was the one who committed cowardice because he forced unarmed people to submit to him by force of arms.

We could not defend ourselves with our bare hands. If they had laid their weapons aside there would not have been enough pieces of them left to divide among all the members of our crew.

MENU PLANNED BY COOKS

With The Girl Scouts

The weatherman played havoc with Girl Scout plans again this week when the big snow came the day of the Sweetheart luncheon for 1960 leaders and assistants of Girl Scout troops. Many leaders from out of town were unable to attend but 43 persons braved the elements and enjoyed the very special event. Mrs. Ralph Sullivan, retiring president, was in charge of arrangements for the luncheon which was served at Hamilton's cafe. Another article, giving more particulars will appear later this week.

Last week was a busy one in the Scout office with two full days spent in basic training for new leaders of troops formed since the last training session before Christmas. Fourteen leaders were present to take advantage of the day-long program on Tuesday and Wednesday. Mrs. Robert Hartman, Executive Director, and Mrs. Charles Nicholson were the instructors. Those attending were: Mrs. Mae Scott, Mrs. Laura Whewell and Mrs. Nell Cook of Roodhouse; Mrs. C. N. Spradlin and Mrs. Albert Yancy of Ashland; and from Jacksonville, Mrs. O. C. Zink, Jr., Mrs. Willard Prewitt, Mrs. Russell Walton, Mrs. A. K. Beams, Mrs. Rachel Sauerwein, Mrs. Melba Reeve, Mrs. Edward Anderson, Mrs. Russell Wilson and Mrs. Jack Wise.

Camp Committee

Members of the camp committee met Wednesday morning at the home of Mrs. Ernest Chumley, 340 East Michigan, for a regular session. The group voted to meet in the homes of members after this instead of the Scout office. A decision was made regarding a Camp Shagbark shoulder patch which will be presented to the Board of Directors for approval next week.

Next week there will be meetings each day except Friday. On Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock the members of the public relations committee will meet at the Scout office. At this time they will arrange a suitable meeting time for all committee members. Mrs. Elmer Lukeman is chairman. On Tuesday, Feb. 7, the first meeting of the Senior Planning Board will be held at 4 p.m. at the Scout office. The Senior Planning Board is made up of three members from each Senior troop in the Council. The group will plan activities for the Senior troops. Miss Carol Van Tassel of MacMurray College will advise the group.

Members of the Board of Directors of the Council will hold a get-acquainted meeting Wednesday, Feb. 8, at 9:30 a.m. in the Scout office. Mrs. Howard Choate, new president, will preside and there will be several newly-elected board members attending for the first time. Mrs. William Zellman is the new secretary and Mrs. Kenneth Mangan and Mrs. George McNamara are new members-at-large. Mrs. Ralph Sullivan is the new first vice president. Mrs. Leroy Martin, Mrs. William Gross, Mrs. Elmer Lukeman and Mrs. Frank Clay also have been elected for new terms on the board.

Cass County Neighborhood will hold a meeting on Thusday moning, Feb. 9, at 9:30 o'clock in Virginia.

Friday, Feb. 10, is the last day to register for the basketry workshop to be given by Mrs. Ralph Sullivan on March 1. Because materials will have to be ordered it is necessary to have registrations in by Feb. 10.

Don't forget to be making plans in your troop now for Girl Scout Week coming up March 12-18. Be working on exhibit ideas, making posters, etc. This will be a big celebration this year and it takes time to get ready for such an occasion.

Intermediate Girl Scouts of Troop No. 9, led by Mrs. Philip Bradish, entertained the girls of Troop No. 2 of the Illinois School for the Deaf at their meeting on Thursday afternoon at First Presbyterian church. The hostess troop demonstrated an investiture service for the deaf girls, who will be invested in two weeks. The demonstration was very well done and was of great benefit to Troop No. 2.

The remainder of the meeting was given to square dancing and the members of Troop No. 2 were instructed by the girls of Troop No. 9. Everyone thoroughly enjoyed themselves. During the social hour hot chocolate and cup cakes were served. Mrs. Kenneth Mangan is leader of Troop No. 2. Miss Gail Fuller and Miss Mary Ann Williams of Illinois College and Miss Norma Cormack and Miss Judy Katt of MacMurray College were present to assist the leaders.

Wednesday, Feb. 8, marks the birthday of the Boy Scouts of America and all the Girl Scouts of Illinois Prairie Council wish to extend congratulations.

Foreign Car Firms Hope Cut In Prices Will Boost Sales

DETROIT (AP) — Foreign car companies have begun firing what may be their final shots in a battle to keep a solid foothold in the American auto market.

They have started to cut prices.

Deep price cuts, which broaden the gap between small foreign cars and the domestic compacts by $500 or more, long have been regarded as the ultimate secret weapon in the import campaign.

Sales of the imports hit the skids last year, dropping almost 20 per cent from their 600,000 peak of 1959.

Shipments from European factories have declined even more than the sales rate yet recent figures indicate stocks of these cars in this country still represent an 85 to 90-day supply at current selling rates.

So the price cuts have begun.

Renault, second biggest selling foreign car in the United States, chopped $200 from the port of entry prices of its Dauphine. The Dauphine, volume car of the French line, now carries a $1,385 price tag at east coast ports.

While none of the other importers has announced cuts, they are expected.

A very possible exception is Volkswagen, far and away the biggest imported seller and the only one to increase its sales here in 1960.

One recent New York report claimed VW, too, had proposed price cuts but had met opposition from its independent distributors.

Renault sales were off about 27 per cent in the United States last year from 1959. Maurice Bosquet, general manager of Renault, Inc., predicts sales of about 75,000 units this year, a slight increase.

Many dealers have been discounting heavily on the foreign models in stock but here again Volkswagen appears to be an exception.

GIRL SCOUTS TOUR HOSPITAL, BOOK BINDERY

Leader is Mrs. Fulkerson, assisted by Mrs. Stansfield and Mrs. Andrews.

The girl scouts went to the New Method Book Bindery on Jan. 12, and to Passavant Hospital the following week. They toured the entire hospital.

At the Jan. 26 and Feb. 2 meetings the scouts embroidered.

Take a look at the South hand only! East opens with a not vulnerable bid of four diamonds. What should you bid?

Harry Fishbein chose to bid four hearts only. He knew he was underbidding, but he had a hunch that he would get another chance.

Sure enough. West bid five diamonds and North bid five hearts. Now Harry went to six and East and West were content to pass. They thought Harry was taking a wild gamble.

Of course, the dummy held the wrong cards for him. The jack of clubs would have been worth more than the ace and queen of spades.

Nevertheless, he made the hand by means of an unusual end play. He won the first diamond; led a trump to dummy; ruffed dummy's other diamond; led another trump to dummy; led a club from dummy and played his eight spot.

West won with the ten and was end-played. A spade lead would allow Harry to finesse dummy's queen and nine of clubs while a club lead would allow Harry's queen to win. If West had had a diamond, that lead would have given Harry a ruff and discard.

♥♣ CARD Sense ♠♦

Q—The bidding has been:

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	?

You, South, hold:
♠ A Q 8 7 ♥ 5 ♦ K 6 5 ♣ K J 9 4 3
What do you do?

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding two hearts your partner has raised you directly to three clubs. What do you do now?

JHS Crushes Kincaid, 105-63; Routt Nudges New Berlin

Crimsons Have Easy Time In Collecting Their Fifth Straight

The Jacksonville High School Crimsons went on a scoring rampage, set a probable school record for total points in one game, won their fifth game in a row, impressed the startled onlookers as having developed into a definite up-coming tournament threat, and overwhelmed the Kincaid Ponies, 105-65. Coach John Chapman's Crimsons literally knocked the bottom out of the nets as they scored 27 points in each of the second and fourth periods and 29 points in the third quarter while placing ten men in the scoring column. The Jacks were rugged on the boards, and made up for their frequent passing errors, by the high frequencied offensive attack.

Kincaid stayed within 40 points of the Crimsons on only one thing, free throws, as they hit their first thirteen in a row and ended up with 35 charity toses for the contest. The game started out quiet enough, and Jacksonville semed to be a little annoyed at the full court press which the Ponies applied to open the non-conference contest. The two clubs traded baskets and the lead changed hands six times in the first six minutes of play before Ron Tomhave garnered a three point play with 2:06 left in the first period and Jacksonville's beginning lead, 14-13. Tomhave stuffed in nine points for the Crimsons in the first quarter and displayed some deft tipping ability. The Pony press caused the Jacks to be a little anxious with their passing, but the Crimsons put on a little spurt to grab a five point lead at the quarter, 22-17. From here on in it was "katybar," and Chapman's sharpshooters began to bombard the hoop from everywhere. The Ponies stayed within 10-12 points on charity tosses, and Jack Cowgill missed their first free attempt with 2:39 to go in the half and break the string at 13. Rich Sweeney popped in four free throws for Jacksonville in the last 14 seconds to run the Crimsons halftime margin to 16, 49-33.

Tomhave and Ken Norton picked up four fouls each in the first 16 minutes of action and never got back into the contest. Jacksonville hit 20 of 40 attempts from the field for 50%, while Kincaid could get only 17 shots and made 8 for a creditable 47%. The Ponies were especially hurt by the loss of their ace rebounder and top scorer, Fred Sapetti, who suffered the loss of two front teeth and a gashed lip in the rough and tumble action under the boards. Coach Wayne Sawyer's Ponies hit on 17 of 19 free throws in the first half for an enviable 89%.

The Crimsons really began to stack up the points to open the second half, and Kincaid couldn't buy a basket. The Jacks ran the score to 60-36 in the first three minutes and ten seconds of play, and every minute thereafter seemed to add to the margin. The biggest lead of the third stanza came with 1:03 to play on a rebound by Ron Yates, 76-40. Yates, Chapman's outstanding sophomore was a big part of the run away. He joined with Norton, Sweeney, and Tomhave in controlling both boards and tied guard Chip Baldwin for high honors with 18 points. With 1:41 until the final period, Chapman began to substitute liberally, but the reserves were not to be outdone. At one point in the big third canto, Jacksonville had made 8 of 13 attempts from the field, and finished by outscoring the Ponies 29-9 in the eight minute period.

The final period was to be dull second string basketball, but the score continued to mount and with a little over three minutes remaining the crowd began to sense that the Crimsons had a chance to reach the century mark. Bill Stanford took charge of the situation, and got six straight points, his final two running the scoreboard to a crowd-roaring Kincaid 58 Jacksonville 00; 100 points.

The Crimsons amassed 93 shots from the floor and hit on 43 for their third straight contest of shooting in the 40% bracket; 46%. Kincaid didn't get as many shots as Jacksonville did buckets, and made 15 of 41 for 36%. Not one of the many spectators could remember a Jacksonville team that had scored 100 points and it's definitely the highest in Chapman's tenure at the local school. The Crimsons' previous high for the year was 69 in last yeek's triumph over St. Teresa.

Coach Bob Kraushaar's JV squad made a perfect evening of it, for Jacksonville fans, by downing the Ponies, 62-47.

DENVER IS SIX STRONG

DENVER (AP) — Coach Murray Armstrong says his University of Denver hockey team is as strong as the outfit that won the Western Collegiate Hockey Assn. and NCAA titles last season. The Pioneers have most of their veterans back, including George Kirkwood at goal, Bill Masterson, Marty Howe and George Konik.

Yanks Consider Moving Camp To Fort Lauderdale

NEW YORK (AP) — Dan Topping, president of the New York Yankees, said Friday the club definitely would live up to its contract to train in St. Petersburg, Fla. However, he hinted broadly that the club might move its spring quarters to Fort Lauderdale within two years.

Topping said Roy Hamey, general manager, had talked with St. Pete hotel officials who told him the hotel would not accept the club's Negro players.

"Elston Howard and Hector Lopez are as important as anyone else on our club," said Topping. "They should be a part of the club all the way. I always have thought our entire club should be housed in one place. But Roy talked to the hotel people and you know what happened. There is not a thing we can do about it."

"The colored situation has nothing to do with it but we have been contacted by people from Fort Lauderdale. They have proposed building certain facilities (park, offices, clubhouse). If they do it, the chances are we'll move from St. Petersburg.

"Under our contract with St. Petersburg, running through 1963, we are able to leave for one year if we bring in another major league team to replace us. We intend to live up to our contract. No more would be possible until after the 1962 spring.

"We have nothing against St. Petersburg. But at Fort Lauderdale we would have a town and park all to ourselves instead of sharing it with the St. Louis Cardinals. We would have better housing facilities and a more modern arrangement with offices in the park."

FOUR BIG RACES ON TV

NEW YORK (AP) — Sports Network will televise the four $100,000 thoroughbred races to be held during the Florida season. The first big event will be the Widener Handicap to be run Feb. 18 at Hialeah.

This will be followed by the Flamingo on Feb. 25 at Hialeah, the Gulfstream Handicap, March 18, and the Florida Derby at Gulfstream Park on April 1.

SCHEFFING'S SURPRISE

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP)—It was more than a mild surprise to Bob Scheffing, new Detroit Tiger manager, when Tiger officials called him at his home here to sound him out about the job.

"I thought the San Francisco Giant job would be offered me," says Scheffing, "I saw rumors in the papers. One other club did seek me, but I can't say what club."

Scheffing coached with the Milwaukee Braves in 1960.

THREE FROM CANADA

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Yale's hockey team includes three players from Canada. They are Ken MacLean and Tim Sargeant of Toronto and Stephen Ripley from Calgary.

McElhenny Says He May Give Up Pro Football

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Halfback Hugh McElhenny, the San Francisco 49er star acquired last week by the new Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League, said Friday he may give up the game.

Although he previously had expressed approval of the transfer, he has entered into a partnership in a supermarket at Santa Clara, Calif.

"This throws a different light on the whole matter," McElhenny said. "Now I'm not sure what I'll do and I may quit football altogether.

"It is also possible I might try to play out my option at Minneapolis. That would make me a free agent for the following season and free to deal with anyone."

The former University of Washington All America was one of three 49ers picked by the Vikings in the NFL plan to staff the new entry.

Petersburg Beats ISD Tigers, 66-44

PETERSBURG — Coach Dick Garner's Bluejays coasted to a 66-44 triumph over Illinois School for Deaf Friday night in a PMSC outing. Petersburg grabbed the lead at the start and was never pushed in picking up victory number nine against eight setbacks.

Coach Jim Bonds' Tigers had to settle for their 13th loss in 14 starts. There was no preliminary tilt as the ISD bus broke down in Ashland and the team was late in arriving.

Bobby Poncar of the losers captured scoring honors for the evening with 21 tallies. John Moats paced the 10-man scoring for the winners with 13 markers.

Manhattan Steals Opening Spotlight In Millrose Games

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Manhattan's smooth-striding 2-mile relay team whipped to a 7:32.8 indoor record in the Millrose Games Friday night overshadowing the feats of Istvan Roszavolgyi, Hayes Jones and Wilma Rudolph.

Roszavolgyi, running his second indoor race since getting off a plane from Hungary less than a week ago, won the Wanamaker mile in 4:06, before a packed house of 15,000 in Madison Square Garden.

Jones tied his own indoor record in 7 flat in the 60-yard high hurdles and Miss Rudolph, a triple gold medal winner in the Olympics, tied her own indoor :06.9 mark for the women's 60-yard dash. She did it twice, in both the semifinals and finals.

Even John Thomas had to take a back seat this time. The 6-foot-5 Boston University junior won the high jump with a leap of 7 feet—for him a routine jump.

Manhattan's 2-mile relay team was made up of John Corry, Kye Courtney, Larry St. Clair and Art Evans, running in that order. There never was any doubt as to the winner and the Jaspers finished about 25 yards ahead of Holy Cross.

This is a fantastic accomplishment of the Jaspers because the record they broke, 7:33.9 by Seton Hall in 1942, was made on a nine-lap track, which is far faster than the Garden's 11-lap saucer.

Corry was clocked in 1:55.1, Courtney in 1:54.2, St. Clair in 1:51.8 and Evans in 1:51.7.

Roszavolgyi, who is trying to break Ron Delany's indoor mile record of 4:01.4, had little trouble. Deacon Jones of Fort Lee, Va., took over the lead for a lap at the three-quarter mark. He only served as a "rabbit" for Roszavolgyi, and wound up third behind Ernie Cunliffe at the finish.

Cunliffe led for the first four laps and hit the quarter mile in a speedy :61.5. Rosy was right behind, however, biding his time. The 32-year-old Hungarian army lieutenant took over before the half. He was clocked in 2:02.7—still mighty fast—for the half.

From then on, except for Jones' brief bid, Rosy stayed in front. Cunliffe's second place time was 4:06.4, while Jones caught in 4:06.5. Pete Close of the Marine Corps was fourth.

As for Miss Rudolph, the willowy lass first tied her own 60-yard dash record in the semifinal and made it look ridiculously easy. Later in the final, she beat her teammate, Vivian Brown, by about three yards.

Miss Rudolph first hit :06.9 for the 60-yard dash two weeks ago in Los Angeles, the first time a woman ever got under 7 seconds for the dash.

Jerry Siebert of the University of California sped to a 1:51.9 victory in the half-mile run.

Myron Schumacher led Concordia with 22 points. Dick Lucitti was high for Elmhurst with 20.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)— Rockford College sped to a 20-point first-half lead and finished with an 105-97 basketball victory over Concordia of Springfield Saturday night.

Bruce Swenson tossed in 32 points for the victors, but scoring honors went to Concordia's Jim Kalthoff who finished with 39.

TENNIS ACTION BECOMES OFFICIAL

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Executive Committee of the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association Friday night confirmed disciplinary action taken by the Rules Committee against two U.S. Davis Cup players. The action now becomes official.

Chuck McKinley, 19, of St. Louis, had his suspension extended to May 1, 1961, and was placed on probation for the rest of the year. Dennis Ralston, 18, fo Bakersfield, Calif., was placed on probation for the entire year.

McKinley was penalized for throwing a racquet into the stands durin, the interzone Davis Cup finals at Perth, Australia. Ralston was warned for what the committee called a series of failures to do in several tournaments.

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Giants of the National Football League signed a 10-year contract with the New York Yankees for use of Yankee Stadium Friday. The Giants have averaged 53,431 for each game since moving into the stadium from the Polo Grounds in 1956.

Curtis Bangs In 36 Points To Lead Routt Past Pretzels, 66-63

NEW BERLIN — Coach Tony Dolenc's Pretzels fell apart in the fourth quarter while the rampaging Routt Rockets hit for 21 points to defeat their hosts Friday night, 66-63, behind the 36-point production of dead-eye Fred Curtis.

New Berlin led throughout the first three quarters and had built up a 13-point advantage at halftime, 39-26, but the Winstead quintet cut the deficit to seven after three quarters, 52-45.

Curtis hit his second all-time high scoring mark for the season in leading the Rockets to their 16th win against five defeats. The Rocket ace had hit 41 in the Waverly Holiday tourney.

Carl Compardo led the losers with 27 points. New Berlin is now 12-6 for the season.

Triopia Hands Bluffs 1st Conference Loss

ARENZVILLE—Triopia's Trojans, winners of the PMSC conference tournament, applied the first conference loss in seven outings to Bluffs Friday night, 64-56.

Routt is the only undefeated team in the conference with a 6-0 mark and only Bluffs and Perry are the remaining hurdles toward the PMSC title. Triopia is 5-1 and finishes loop play against Perry and Chandlerville. The Bluejays, 6-1, have a remaining date with the Rockets next Tuesday evening in Our Saviour's gymnasium.

Triopia and Bluffs were all even after eight minutes of play, 17-17, but the winners forged ahead by three at halftime, 35-32. The Bluejays fell six points off the pace, 48-42, after three quarters and couldn't make up the difference in the final stanza as they were outscored, 16-14.

Coach Leighton Peterson's Trojans annexed their 15th win in 17 starts while the loss was number five in 20 starts for the Danhaus quintet.

Roegge, Hansmeier and Dufelmeier each threw in 15 points apiece while Harbin added 13 to the winning total. Fredrick and Fargo paced the losers with 24 and 22 respectively.

NFL Boss Okays Etcheverry's Pact With Cards

NEW YORK (AP)— Pete Rozelle, commissioner of the National Football League, approved Sam Etcheverry's contract with the St. Louis Cardinals Friday.

Etcheverry, a star quarterback with the Montreal Club of the Big Four Canadian League, signed with the NFL team after the Alouettes traded him to Hamilton of the same circuit. The former Denver University star said the swap violated a no-trade agreement he had with Monteal and so he signed with the U.S. team.

Rozelle Friday upheld that argument.

Rozelle said Etcheverry produced a copy of a letter, signed by Perry Moss, Montreal coach and general manager, agreeing to the no-trade angle.

Rozelle said he and the NFL attorney felt that violating the no-trade part of the contract terminated the pact entirely and made Etcheverry a free agent.

Rozelle's action brought quick reaction from Canadian Football Commissioner Sydney Halter who said in Winnipeg that Rozelle's approval is "a complete repudiation" of agreements between the two leagues.

DOWNHILL WINNER

BADGASTEIN, Austria (AP)—Erika Netzer, 22-year old nurse's aid, won the downhill race Friday in the annual ski competition for the Silver Jug on the 3,200-yard course that twists 770 yards down the side of Graukogel Mountain. There were 32 gates.

TRY A WANT AD

Pittsburgh Expects To Repeat As Champs

By DANNY MURTAUGH
Pittsburgh Pirates

WOODLYN, Pa. (AP) — The Pirates expect to repeat as National League pennant winners this season. But I realize that the job isn't going to be easy.

For one thing, several of the other teams have strengthened themselves through trades. Others have some fine young material coming up from the minors. My big job will be to see that complacency doesn't set in. That happens to a pennant winner sometimes.

Unless something unexpected happens in spring training, we will have just about the same lineup as we did last year. Our biggest improvement is in the bull pen. At the beginning of last season, we could count only on Elroy Face to give us a good relief job. Then we picked up Clem Labine in August and now we have Bobby Shantz. I'd say that we were very fortunate in landing Shantz, who was so effective against us in the World Series.

My plans now call for Face and Shantz to work in the late innings of a game with Labine and Fred Green doing the relief work in case our starting pitcher is knocked out early.

Once again, we'll be counting on timely hitting and a good defense to pull us through. I don't believe many people realized how great a center fielder Bill Virdon was until they saw him make those terrific catches in the series. He'll be flanked by Bob Skinner in left field and Roberto Clemente in right.

Bill Mazeroski and Dick Groat give us one of the best second-short combinations in the league and it's also hard to beat Don Hoak as a glove man at third. It'll probably be Dick Stuart and Rocky Nelson again at first base and Smoky Burgess and Hal Smith behind the plate.

With fellows like Vernon Law, Bob Friend and Harvey Haddix as starters and with a stronger bullpen, there probably won't be much chance for any of our rookie pitchers to win regular jobs.

Murtaugh Signs New Contract, Says Pirates The Team To Beat In '61

By JOE BRADIS

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Manager Danny Murtaugh Friday signed a one-year contract with the Pittsburgh Pirates and declared: "We are the defending world champions and the team to beat."

There was no mention of salary. However, sources indicated the smiling Irishman probably got $40,000, a $10,000 hike over last year.

The signing was announced at a news conference in Forbes Field where on a hazy, autumn day last fall the Pirates beat the New York Yankees 10-9 in the seventh and final game of the World Series on a prodigious home run by Billy Mazeroski.

Said Brown:

"Perhaps it is unsual to sign a manager so late in the year. But we've worked as a closely knit family. We plan to have Danny as manager for many years."

Said Murtaugh:

"It was a mutual agreement. Joe said to me—'Here's a one-year contract.' I said okay. It took us less than a minute to agree; maybe I'm exaggerating."

Murtaugh, who led the Pirates to their first world championship in 35 years, said he probably will start with the same club that killed the Yankees in the World Series.

RAYMOND WATSON FOR MAYOR

PRIMARY ELECTION

Tuesday, February 28, 1961

RAY WATSON SAYS:

Raymond S. Watson

I am a candidate for Mayor
Because . . .

Jacksonville is our home . . . where our children are growing up . . .
its welfare is and should be important to us all.

The best decisions for Jacksonville can be made only in a spirit of harmony and friendship. The Mayor and city council have a duty to work together for the benefit of all of the citizens.

The Mayor and City Council should work with all groups . . . Service Clubs, PTA, Chamber of Commerce, Jacksonville Association of Merchants, Veterans and Labor organizations, church and women's groups and many others to get opinions and advice on city matters.

Jacksonville should take advantage of its plentiful supply of water, its two power companies and its many other fine points. We can use new business and industry to provide more employment and we should be able to attract it.

I believe in active and positive management of the trust imposed by the citizens of Jacksonville in their Mayor.

I will deeply appreciate your support.

"WASP WAIST"

Some kinds of solitary wasps have a narrow stalk joining the front and back parts of the body. This thin stalk in the middle gave us the expression "wasp waist."

In Hollywood

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Is it true what they say about Tuesday?

Eyebrows have been lifting and tongues wagging since petite, blonde Tuesday Weld came to movieland in 1958, a full-blown 15.

Gossips have chronicled romance after romance, one with an actor nearly three times her age. They picture her as no stranger to liquor, tobacco, gay parties and late hours.

When a movie needs a girl to play a sexy teen-ager, Tuesday is thought of first. She's a living legend at 17—while her contemporaries are still in high school.

But does Tuesday try to blow it down? She's more apt to fan it.

Ask her what she thinks of the tales they tell and she deplores only the ones that accent her tender years. One reason she doesn't knock the more lurid yarns is because many originated with her. Tuesday is not unaware of the value of publicity, good or bad, and admits she's the principal source of Tuesday Weld tales.

Tuesday is spending her time these days working with two actors whose names figure in the Weld legend: John Ireland and Elvis Presley. The three costar in "Wild in the Country." And Tuesday's the "wild" of the script.

Tuesday dated Ireland when she was 15. He is 45. Her romance with Presley, 25, came later.

Tuesday became a legend without ever having a role that would make her a full-fledged star.

Why?

A psychologist might say timing was responsible. Tuesday, blonde, wild, undisciplined, came on the scene as a teen-age nonconformist at the same time "Lolita" became a controversial but best-selling novel.

Although a few years older than the celebrated nymphet of the book, Tuesday soon was labeled as Hollywood's Lolita. Up until a few weeks before the actual casting of the role to unknown Sue Lyon, it was almost a sure bet that Tuesday would play the part.

James Mason, who is playing the middle-aged roue in the movie "Lolita," said of Tuesday only weeks before production: "I can't think of anyone else for the part. She's the only 16-year-old who looks 13 and can act too."

Much of the Weld legend was of Tuesday's own making. Other movie teen-agers had dated older men. Natalie Wood used to go out with Raymond Burr when she was only 17.

Lana Turner, Clara Bow—many of the screen sirens — had romances with older men. But none, at first, got the publicity that Tuesday did when she started dating Ireland.

"I got the worst possible publicity," says Tuesday. "If I hadn't had the performances to follow up the publicity, I would have been dead professionally by now."

That remark points up Tuesday's shrewdness. Early in life she has discovered that Hollywood will forgive anything but bad performances in front of the camera.

Ashland FHA Plans Banquet To Be In April

ASHLAND—The Ashland FHA chapter held their monthly meeting in the high school Monday night. The business meeting consisted of suggestions for making money. The money is needed for the Mother - Daughter banquet which is to be held in April.

The meeting was then adjourned and formal initiation followed. Formal initiation is a candlelight ceremony by the officers for the benefit of the freshman FHA girls.

A panel discussion was then given on parliamentary procedure by some of the FHA girls who are working on their chapter degree.

Vernon Edwards concluded the meeting with a movie and slides on the FHA Snow Queen that was held in December of last year. He also showed slides of last year's senior prom and of the recent trip the Edwards family made to Florida. The slides were enjoyed very much.

Honor Gerald Douglass

Gerald Douglass was pleasantly surprised last Friday evening, when a group of relatives and friends met at his home in honor of his birthday. The evening was spent in playing pinochle, after which cake and coffee were served and the guest of honor opened his gifts.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Chester Douglass, Mr. and Mrs. James Edwards and Barbara, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hoagland and two children, and the Gerald Douglass family.

The Happy Hustlers Sunday school class of the Church of Christ enjoyed a ham and bean supper in the church basement, with the men being hosts.

The evening's devotions were in charge of Mrs. Florence Robinson, and the roll call was answered to with a favorite Bible story.

David Troxell, four-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Troxell, fell off of a bunk bed at his home and lit on his head, and was taken to St. John's hospital in Springfield Tuesday where he will lie in traction for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Cosner, who have been vacationing in Tucson, Ariz., for two weeks, returned to their home here Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kruse and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cripe of Denver, Colo., arrived here Tuesday morning, having been called here by the death of the former's brother, John Kruse, and Mrs. Cripe's father. Rev. and Mrs. M. Galligher also arrived here from Indianapolis, Ind., the latter being a cousin.

Claude Kline of Donaldson spent Tuesday here at the home of his brother, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Kline.

Funeral Services For Amon Nash

Funeral services for Amon Nash were held at 2 p.m. Friday at the Williamson Funeral Home with the Rev. W. J. Boston officiating. Mrs. Francis Angel presided at the organ.

Pallbearers were Elfred Detmer, Wilbur Tappenbeck, John Ward, Carlton Shumacker, Walter Unken and Elmer Lakamp. Burial was in Concord Cemetery.

ROODHOUSE WOMAN SERIOUSLY ILL

ROODHOUSE—Mrs. Mary (Nell) Morris, who has resided for the last eleven years in the home of her younger daughter, Mrs. John Mieher, and husband, rural route, is critically ill. Another daughter, Mrs. Don McNeeley, Jacksonville, has come to assist in her care. Recent visitors in the Mieher home have been Clyde Mieher, Alton; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mieher, Kathy, Carlinville; Mrs. Jack Spradlin, Mary and Susan, Jacksonville; Virgil Hutton and wife, Harley Casteel, William Dyer, city. Mrs. Morris, who is 82, formery resided in Franklin.

STORMS EVERYWHERE

Although violent thunderstorms do not occur in Hawaii and are comparatively rare on the Pacific coast, no part of the United States is entirely devoid of electrical storms.

MORRIS' MONEY

Gouverneur Morris introduced the word "cent" into the American language in 1782. He suggested a monetary system for the United States in which 144 cents would be worth a dollar.

BUOYANT BASE—As a solution to the safe launching of huge chemical or nuclear-powered rockets of the future, a floating sea base has been proposed. Designed by Aerojet-General Corp., it is called "PROP" (Planetary Rocket Ocean Platform). Drawing shows a 300-foot nuclear rocket ready for launching. The platform is well above the waves and is supported by an underwater buoyant chamber. A submarine is used to evacuate personnel through an air lock after a nuclear firing. PROP is designed to have good stability, even in a hurricane.

WHAT EVER HAPPENED TO BABY JANE?

By Henry Farrell

Copyright © 1960 by Henry Farrell Distributed by Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

THE STORY: Blanche Hudson has been trying unsuccessfully to summoning help. Her sister Jane is unbalanced and Blanche fears that she may become violent. Blanche, a helpless cripple, is alone in her room while Jane has gone out. Blanche does not know where Jane has gone.

"Exp. accompanist - arranger, male, to join est. star in act for clubs, TV. Piano, violin, req. HO 6-1784."

Jane studied the corrected copy the girl had shoved across the counter to her. Then she looked back at the original she had composed herself.

Maybe she should have put her name in the ad after all. Baby Jane Hudson. She narrowed her eyes, seeing it in print as it once had been, and for a moment she felt a small thrill of excitement.

"Of course we can print your copy," the girl said, "if that's the way you really want it..."

Jane decided that the girl was very pleasant and that she liked her very much. To please her, she would do it her way. It was just possible that the girl was right; the replies would come from exactly the same people anyway; the object was to get in all the vital information with as few words as possible.

The girl drew the corrected copy back to her side of the desk. "I'm sure you'll get just as good results."

"Well," Jane said, "since you're a newspaperwoman, you probably know best."

The girl nodded, started to turn away and then turned back again.

"I know I shouldn't, but—well—I've just got to know. In this ad—would you mind telling me—who's the star?"

Jane's smile broadened. She made a small, pointing gesture with her gloved hand. "Me," she said. "Maybe you're too young to remember, but I'm the original Baby Jane—Baby Jane Hudson."

The girl's lips parted. "Well," she said, with a look of blank perplexity, "well, for heavensake!" She glanced away, toward a co-worker who had just put in an appearance at the end of the counter.

"Yes," Jane nodded, "thank you. Thank you very much." Holding herself straight, she turned and left.

"For heavensake," the girl said, moving off to join her companion, "who in the world is Baby Jane Hudson?"

At the bottom step, Blanche leaned forward to rest her head against the cool, hard surface of the post. Her descent had been arduous and painful.

Leaning forward, she reached out quickly to the outer side of the balustrade and began to draw herself forward, moving her hands with great care from one support to the other.

Tears of exertion stung at her eyes, but through the blur, she could see the telephone niche coming steadily closer.

When she reached up into the niche, she discovered that the phone was just beyond her touch. But then, seeing the cord, she put her hand out to it and grasped it.

After only a moment's resistance, the instrument slid forward to the brink, teetered there briefly and then spilled forward and down, striking the carpeted floor with a muted clatter.

Then, pressing the receiver to her ear, she dialed and waited. There was a series of faint buzzing sounds, a click, and then a pleasant female voice: "Dr. Shelby's office. May I help you?"

"Miss Hilt? This is Blanche Hudson. I—is the doctor there? I've got to talk to him. It's—it's about Jane—my sister. . . ."

"Miss Hudson? Miss Hilt says you're a little upset."

"Doctor Shelby—" Blanche paused. Her thoughts were still muddled and unclear. "It's Jane . . . she's . . . Doctor, I've got to see you right away. It's so important! Can you come out here to the house?"

"Well, yes," Dr. Shelby said, "I suppose so—if it's really that urgent. But—has there been some sort of accident?"

• • •

"No," Blanche broke in urgently, "no, you don't understand. It's—not physical. She'd never come down there — not voluntarily. And I'm helpless. . . ."

"Then it's some sort of—emotional disturbance, is that it?"

Blanche seized gratefully on the phrase. "Yes, yes, that's it."

"Is she violent?"

"Violent?" Blanche pressed a hand to her brow, still trying to clear her thoughts. The important thing, she told herself, was to get him here to the house before Jane returned and found her downstairs. It didn't matter what she said now. "Yes," she said, "yes, she is. You must come at once."

She broke off, her whole body gripped in a sudden convulsion of horror. She saw Jane's hunched figure silhouetted there in the open doorway.

Wilson Started Presidential News Conferences In 1913

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) —Possibly no one there that day realized history was being made.

Woodrow Wilson was nervous, embarrassed, and full of righteousness.

Reporters gathered around him were willing to listen, but probably were unwilling to be impressed, especially since Wilson's little lecture dealt with how they should run their business.

"I feel that a large part of the success of public affairs," Wilson said, "depends on the newspaper men—not so much on the editorial writers, because we can live down what they say, as upon the news writers, because the news is the atmosphere of public affairs.

"Unless you get the right setting to affairs—disperse the right impression—things go wrong. If you play up the differences of opinion and predict difficulties you are impeding public business."

Woodrow Wilson had invented presidential news conferences.

Until Dwight D. Eisenhower, with rare exceptions, the president was never directly quoted. Sometimes he wasn't even identified. "A high White House source disclosed today," a news story might begin, leaving the reader to guess how high the source might be.

But Eisenhower, advised by his press secretary, James C. Hagerty, made major changes.

Photographers were allowed to shoot away throughout the conference. Once the transcript of what Eisenhower had said was checked for any real bloopers, it was released to reporters for direct quotation, with the words tumbling and stumbling every which way, just as Eisenhower had said them.

Now President Kennedy, ignoring some strong suggestions that the conferences should be restricted rather than expanded, has taken another step—and even his friends admit it could be a risky one.

Kennedy plans to continue his policy of live broadcasts, both television and radio, for all news conferences.

Now it's on the record, instantly, for all the world to see.

"Do you feel there is any risk?" Kennedy was asked at his first news conference.

Kennedy didn't answer directly. He merely said that Eisenhower spoke on the record, too, and that he thinks the country's interests are as well protected under this system.

Yet despite the presidential disclaimer, it's still a daring move.

All presidents have dealt with the press, of course, but only in the last half century have there been regular question-and-answer sessions with newsmen.

Many observers are now convinced that democracy couldn't function nearly as effectively without the news conference. They say that it gives the president a chance to get his views to the public, and that it gives the newsmen, who here represent the public, a chance to ask questions that should be asked about the mammoth, complex federal organization.

Many a political scandal, so the argument runs, could be swept under the White House rug if it weren't for the opportunity the conferences offer for questioning.

Only at a news conference can a president be asked in person why he allowed, or did not allow, certain things to happen. If the reporters do their work conscientiously, the public's rights can be protected.

Yet if this is true, democracy's effectiveness hangs by a slender thread. For news conferences have no legal support.

They are strictly the whim of the president. He can meet with reporters as often, or as seldom, as he cares to under whatever ground rules he wants.

Yet news conferences are so well established, and they can be used so much to his advantage, that each president on entering office usually announces he plans to meet frequently with his good friends, the newsmen.

But a president's honeymoon is soon over. Certainly Wilson, who began by saying he wanted to make friends of the press, never succeeded. He was suspicious of most newspapers, especially when they tried to guess what course he might take.

Whatever else history may say about Warren G. Harding, as a newspaper man himself — he was publisher of the Marion (Ohio) Star—he understood and liked newsmen.

He not only restored news conferences; he also put them on a twice-a-week schedule.

But as Harding blundered in his appointments, so did he blunder with reporters.

His classic error came after a Four-Power Treaty session when he blurted out an off-the-cuff answer that was completely wrong, with international complications.

Calvin Coolidge and Herbert Hoover wanted their questions written. But writing a question didn't mean you'd get an answer.

Coolidge ducked so many that reporters finally ganged up on him. Each wrote out precisely the same query. Coolidge picked up each question, glanced at it, and discarded it in turn.

When he reached the last one, he said: "I have here a question about the condition of children in Puerto Rico," which of course he didn't. But he methodically plowed through a long, dry reply.

On this alone, you'd have to number Coolidge among the presidential humorists.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, of course, was the old master of the press conference.

He enjoyed the give and take, used the conference to further his plans, and wound up having an incredible 998 of them.

Harry Truman was no Franklin D. Roosevelt, but if he lacked the fine strokes of a fancy artist, he could still slap on a lot of paint—usually all black or all white—in an astonishingly short time.

It's too early to evaluate properly Dwight D. Eisenhower's news conferences, but most reporters agree that something was lacking.

Ironically, this may have been partly due to innovations made by Eisenhower. Each reporter was told to give his name and affiliation before he asked a question.

Since texts of the conferences were printed, and since portions appeared in news reels and on television, here was an excellent opportunity for those addicted to self-advertisement.
